Our Purpose

in publishing this book is to review a year of serious work and welcome play in an environment conducive to the welfare of American youth. Our study has helped us to understand better the meanings inherent in our way of life; our play has taught us the wisdom of cooperation and the value of competitive spirit. We feel that we have gained some insight into the real values of lasting peace, and so we portray in this book the activities of a peaceful school protected by our fighting Alumni who are determined to keep it so.

The parents and friends of John Burroughs School are generous in their response to school needs. The new additions to the original building are a testimonial to their interest and generosity.

To The Class of 1945

I am glad that you have dedicated your book to Peace. Through the years since the United States was drawn into this awful war, senior classes have dedicated their books to ending the war. In 1942, the "Review" was dedicated to "The Alumni of John Burroughs who are now fighting bravely in all branches of the United States Armed Forces . . . "; in 1943, to "Victory against forces unalterably opposed to our principles of living"; and in 1944, to "The Furtherance of American Ideals." That those American ideals may triumph is our fondest hope; that they will triumph is and must continue to be your great decision in living.

Sincerely,

L. D. Haertter.

"Within Missouri's hills there stands
a school with banner high.
Where trees reveal their beauty as they reach up towards the sky.

This quiet hill is crowned with nature's beauty to behold.
All loyal hearts sing Burroughs' praise
in colors blue and gold."

Student Participation in School Government

The John Burroughs School Association was founded in 1923 by a group of public-spirited citizens. It is a non-profit corporation chartered by the State of Missouri and managed by a Board of Trustees elected by the members of the association, who are the parents of the students in the school.

The functions of the Board of Trustees are (1) to formulate, maintain, and improve the educational policies of the school, (2) to manage its finances and property, and (3) to appoint a Director.

The Director is the chief executive officer responsible for the administration of the policies of the school, and, with the approval of the Board of Trustees, for the selection of the Faculty.

The Faculty are responsible for administrative duties and for the instruction and guidance of students.

As a means of effective administration, the Board of Trustees and the Faculty grant to the Student Body certain privileges and responsibilities in the management of the school. In order to insure adequate guidance, the Director and his appointed representatives are advisory members of all student organizations.

Students are responsible for the following:

1. The organization of, and participation in, Student Activities.

2. The maintenance of necessary order about the school and the care of school property in the following areas:

a. The class rooms when a faculty member is not in charge;

b. The library when the faculty member in charge is not present;

c. The dining room and the pantry-serving room with the cooperation of the faculty member in charge;

d. All scheduled Senior School Study Halls;

e. The Junior School Study Halls when a faculty member is not present;

f. The halls;

g. The grounds.

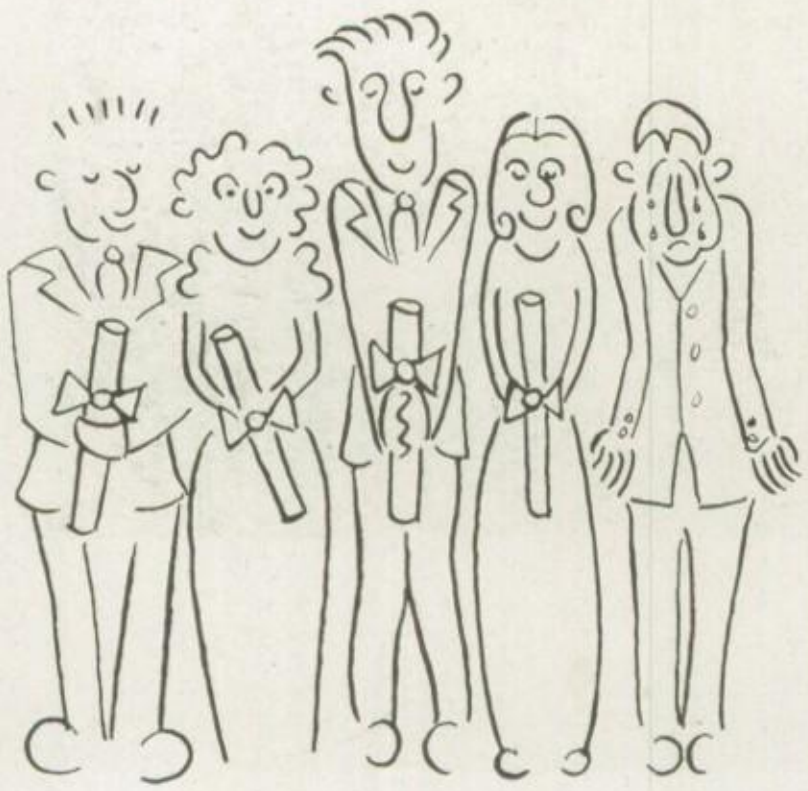
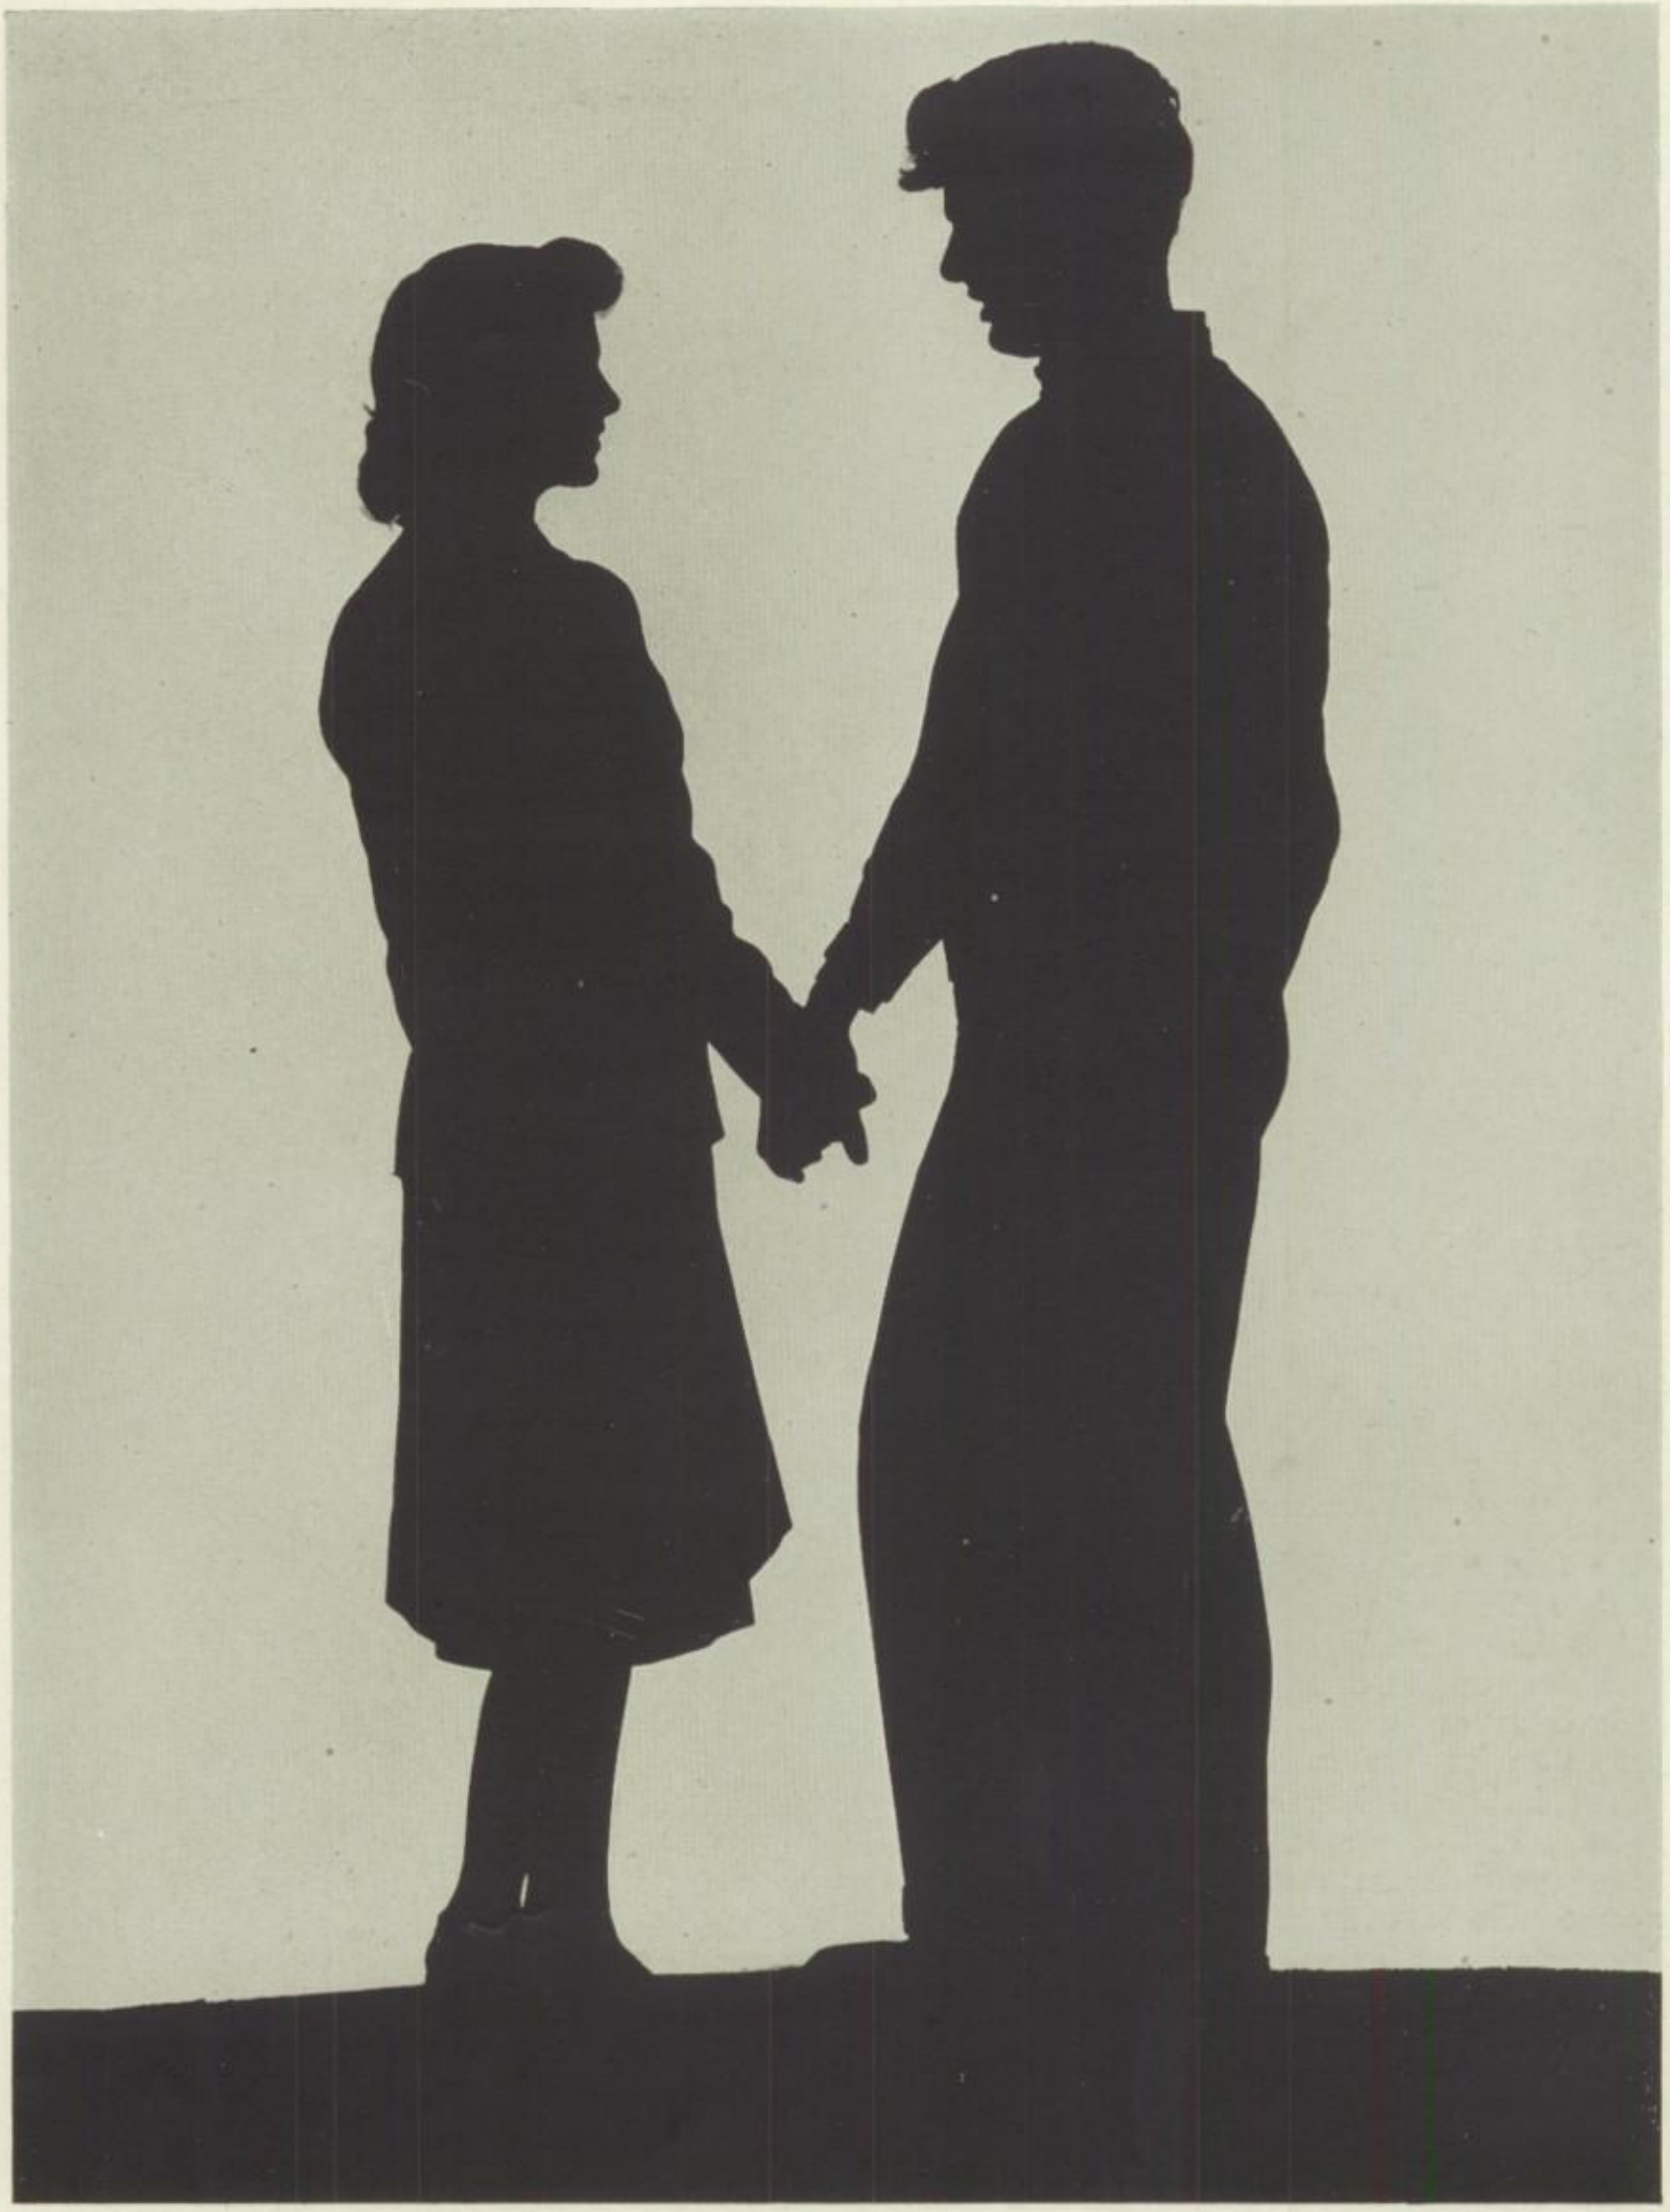
Part One

Personalities

John Burroughs School is interested in a program that affords guidance, as well as freedom, in the development of individual personalities. A wide range of educational experiences in the arts and sciences, together with a free-choice selection and participation in extra-curricular activities, has been designed to further the individual development of every pupil. Together, the academic and activity programs give students an opportunity to pursue and extend their present interests. Young people trained in the precepts of democracy and equipped with varied skills and independent ideas are essential to world peace. In schools, such as Burroughs, these personalities are being developed.





Class History

Mrs. Williamson and Mr. Staten didn't know what the future held for them when, in September, 1939, they were confronted by all forty-five of us! We were rather staggered by the size of the school and the stature of the seniors, who nevertheless managed to get us off to a good start. The boys had a baseball party and the girls had a swimming party. The school suffered no broken windows, and the Van Dyke's swimming pool is still intact, so we judge everything went off all right.

Later in the year, however, when we no longer needed a guide or a compass to find our way around, we began to take an interest in such important activities as Junior School chorus, hockey, football, painting and sculpture, and Student Government. It was in an early meeting of the Legislative Assembly that Judy Williamson made her first entrance into the realm of politics by a tear-sprinkled speech on the values of Student Government. Our parents were kind enough to treat us to an ice-skating party at the Winter Garden and dinner at school which ended in a game of capture. The only damage done was a few skinned knees, catsup-spotted clothes, and a broken pane of glass in a third floor door. (Having trouble, Lela?) After electing Art Hecker to the Student Council, we were ready for eighth grade.

When we returned to the fold, we found ourselves minus Abby Elder, Cal Chambers, and Pete Edwards. Roland Bauer, Alice Neville, Bill Kieffer, and Valerie Taylor had joined us. The first thing we noticed was that two of our sheep were shorn, for Alicia Kircher and Madeline Haertter had cut off their braids. For the first time, acting as a class, we elected Suzie Teasdale President, Art Hecker Vice-President, and Alec Cornwell Secretary, and we succeeded in getting Art and Gloria Gardner on the Council. Our last year's passion for "freeze" had been replaced by a new fad, and Mr. Baker had to control the melee of flying spitballs which permeated his first year Latin class. We were, however, quite able to restrain ourselves on such a great occasion as Warren Outten's formal class party (hic!) The world, or rather the Slabsides audience, got its first view of the Lunts and Fontaines of the future when it witnessed the thrilling performances of Sally Douglas and Bunny Edison in "Cabbages," Bill Kieffer and Alicia Kircher in "The Ghost Story," and Bill Alexander and Marilyn Miller in "Resurrection Ezra." We'll never forget Bill Edison's unintentional but well-timed fall as he energetically leaped from the coffin. In the field of athletics, there was a reversal of the last year's result, for the Navy and the Blues won the cup. Our social inclinations were furthered when Anne Taylor gave a party at her farm, which was the scene of mud-slinging and water fights. Our generous mothers again loosened the purse strings and we had another skating party at the Arena. After successfully editing two issues of "The World," we felt ourselves quite capable of dealing with anything the ninth grade might have to offer.

Madeline's class party started us off in the ninth grade with the proverbial bang. Later as servers at the lunch table, we saw the following new faces: Ruth Sunnen, Marilyn Peterson, Hank Belz, Keith Williams, Lynn Stuart, Jeff Arrick, Elliott Chubb, and, in the middle of the year, Elizabeth Gellhorn. Our election of Alec Cornwell as President, Robin Day, Vice-President and Bibby Ayres, Secretary seemed rather unnecessary as we held only one class meeting.

We were quite proud of the fact that the "C" teams were almost entirely made up of the boys in our class and that Bill Kieffer, Keith Williams, Bud Dodson, and Elliott Chubb made the "B" basketball team, and that Bud made "A" baseball. Judy, Madeline, Carol Hill, and Alicia were on the Varsity hockey squad and Lela made Varsity baseball. The highlight of the athletic season was, as it always is, the Athletic Banquet, at which Mary Phelan and Robin Day, our members of the Athletic Council, sat at the head table and watched Lussie and Lela receive their athletic medals.

The school has never quite recovered from our productions of "Within the Hour," and "Club Clark," but at the time we were quite unaware of any lack of talent on our part. Warren again proved the gallant host and we had our first encounter with the "open-house." Socially undaunted, we went in for bigger and better parties. Our parents gave us a rather wild Halloween party, complete with corn stalks and box lunches, and later in the year, a hay ride which was just as wild, judging by Charlotte Eaton's mangled foot. Other parties given by Anne Taylor, Jerol Anne Jones, and Bob Williams leave us with the poignant memories of such hysterical happenings as the time the male voice yelled through the thin partition, "Hey, Kircher, turn around!"

Somehow we managed to last through the grueling preparations for the Christmas Pageant to find, when the curtains were drawn back, that Robin Day and Carol Hughes were in the tableau. Our last year in the Junior School was highlighted by a rather stern talk from Miss Beaman on "Swinging on the Ropes," by a change from spitballs to water-guns and yo-yos, and by our enlightening trips to the waterworks and to a soil conversation project.

Although, in the transition from Junior to Senior Schools, we had lost Jackie Killion and Jerol Anne Jones, we acquired Lou Werner, Joanne Fistere, Dick Geissal, and Ann Whittemore. Despite the fact that we had no representatives on either Court or Council, we were able to keep alive the intense interest in Student Government which has always been so strong in our class. Our class officers were Judy Williamson as President, Alec Cornwell, Vice-President, and Jerry Rubenstein, Secretary.

We suffered quite a blow in our dramatic careers, for plays were incorporated into the English course. Many were the hours we slaved over "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Julius Caesar," and "Twelfth Night." We will find it hard to forget Dick Burke as the minister in "The Importance." We were soon to discover, however, that our work was in vain, for our masterpieces of acting were never to be displayed before any audience but the class. Alas! In other realms, nevertheless, our talent was more appreciated. The Review, Glee Club, World, Orchestra, Yearbook, Rifle Club, Junior Academy of Science, and the Silver shop became centers of our interest; however, we retained our attraction for parties, of which the hen and stag varieties flourished.

This year was important for several reasons. Our "A" football team beat Codasco. Among its members were Dick Geissal, Bud Dodson and Bill Kieffer. The "A" basketball team boasted one member of our class, Bill Kieffer. Robin Day first came to fame as the pitcher of a mean curve on our "A" baseball team, and Bunny Edison wielded a mighty racket on the "A" tennis team. Lus, Madeline, Judy, and Carol Hill were again on the Varsity hockey team, and the latter three blushingly received their medals.

Tenth grade was also the year in which the girls, although they well remember the Ghost Day of the year before and the disparaging remarks made by the boys, again braved the storm of protest. They went for one day sans make-up, so that Lizzie and Carol would wear lipstick. The attempt met with disastrous results, for Marilyn Miller cheated. In a rather confused frame of mind, we entered the eleventh grade.

We were immediately confronted with two primary problems—our class rings and the Prom. To cope with these difficulties, we promptly elected Alec Cronwell President, Lynn Stuart Vice-President, and Jerry Rubenstein Secretary. Edie Baer and Bertha Scott left the clan, Saxon Cole and Duff Allen joined our ranks, and Abby Elder returned. Feeling a little more sure of our standing, since Art was again on the Council and Robin and Bill Alexander were on the Court, and Anne Taylor was editor of the "Review," we prepared to walk around or crawl under the hurdles in the obstacle course that is the eleventh grade.

Amid the confusion and excitement of the Christmas season, we suddenly became aware of the fact that two of our number were missing as we filed into the gym in the processional. Our lost companions were Bill Murphy and Anne Taylor, who consequently were in the tableau. Our previously budding Thespians now came to full bloom, as witnessed by the performance of our leading ladies, Marilyn Miller in "You Can't Take it With You" and Kitty White in "Charm School." Let us always remember Roland Bauer in the Roman toga, one foot daintly extended.

Lus provided us with a superb party a la female chicken. The underground activities were led by Nora Mastin. Carol Hughes later gave a similar party, famous for two things: the giving out of the long-awaited class rings, and Art's celebrated remark to an innocent bystander, "Bunny's party, too, won't be forgotten. The question is, 'Who done it?'" We spruned any further parties to devote our time and what talent we might have to that event of all events—the Prom!

As the smoke from the first confusion cleared, we found we had accepted Bill Alexander's idea of a band concert in the park as a theme for the decorations. There followed weeks of turmoil, mad dashes to Clayton on one pretext or another, frantic telephone calls for fireproof blue streamers or silver paint, and frenzied searches for an excuse to leave school.

The last week, however, was the most widely remembered of all. The task was greatly lightened by the presence of the juke-box and Harry James' "Music Makers" and Judy Garland's "A Journey to a Star." We're afraid our homework suffered a good deal from the nights we spent at school adjusting streamers, painting and stringing and arguing about the stars, and driving up Clayton Road to bring back refreshments. Among the list of never-forgets are: Bob Williams and Larry Schleicher, driving up to school almost obscured by mounds

Senior Class

Barbara Ayres

BARBARA AYRES

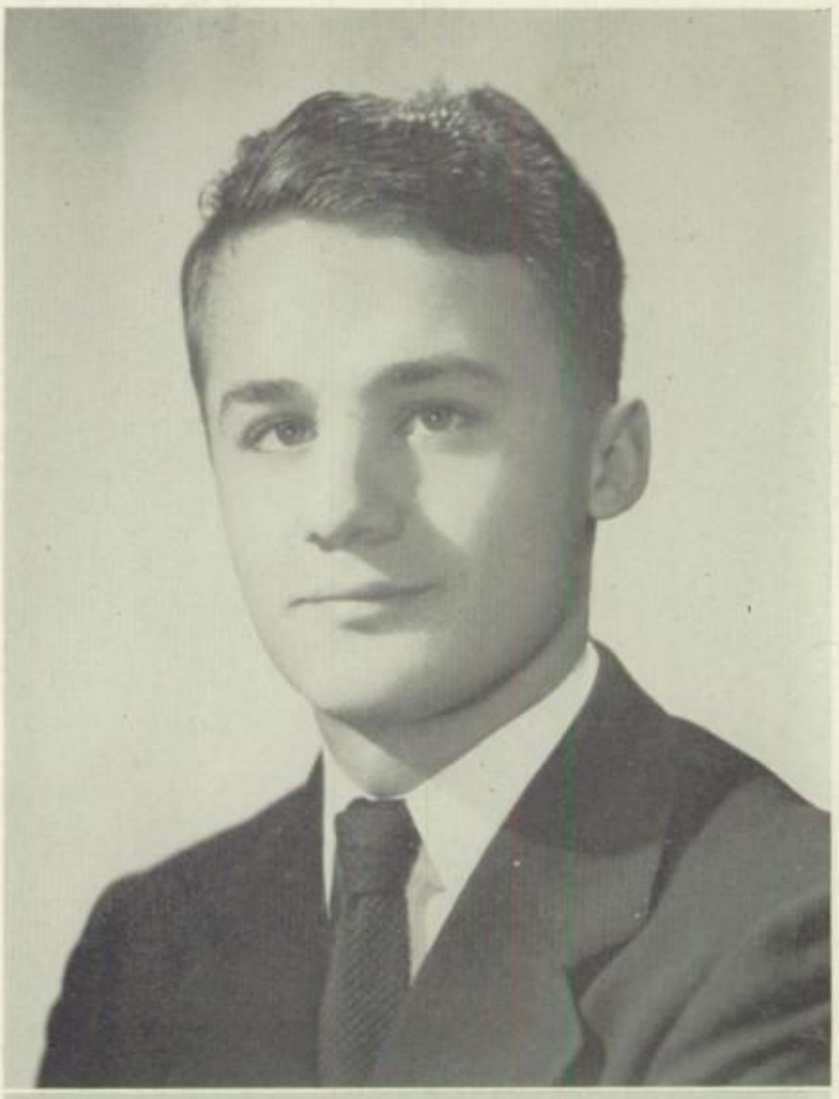
If you should glance into the senior girls' advisory, you would undoubtedly see a cute little blonde dashing around pulling hairs out of her curly head. But don't worry; it's only Babs pulling out some of her famous pink hairs. Bab's sweet smile reveals her natural friendliness and gay personality. She has been the subject of many a funny experience. Will we ever forget the case of the missing earthworm? Babs is also the possessor of a subtle sense of humor. "Bibbie's" generosity blossoms forth on Friday afternoons at Cross Roads. How she finds time to polish her nails every night and yet keep up her "A's" is a wonder to us all. Her excellent portrayal of the serious, yet scatter-brained, "Helen" in "Incognito" is characteristic of anything she undertakes.

DUFF SHEDERIC ALLEN

Duff was one of the last to join our class, coming as he did in the junior year. Nevertheless, his gay sense of humor and his friendliness have won him a real place among us. The low chuckle of "La Duff' is an asset to any get-together. A capable athlete in spite of his rather small stature, Duff has been an active participant in football, soccer, and track. In this last sport, he has been a mainstay of the team and a big help to us on Field Day. Young enough to get several semesters of college before becoming eighteen, Duff plans to study medicine. He has a good start, having a degree of D.D. (Doctor of Data) in chemistry. His extremely high scholastic rating and his friendly personality indicate a bright future for "Duffallen" in his chosen profession.

WILLIAM GUTHURY ALEXANDER

Bill, or "Flat Top" as he is called by his friends, is one of the most popular boys in the class. He has been a valuable member of every team he has played on, and his fine job at the left guard position on the "A" football team is something that will long be remembered. For the past two years he has been a member of the Court, and has had a hand in convicting many a Burroughs criminal. Bill's artistic talents were developed, much to the surprise of the class, when he submitted the winning design for the Junior Prom. The Prom, by the way, was one of the best in history. If you are ever in doubt as to Bill's whereabouts on the week-ends, just drop into "Medarts" where he is sure to be sipping hot cocoa and talking to ————



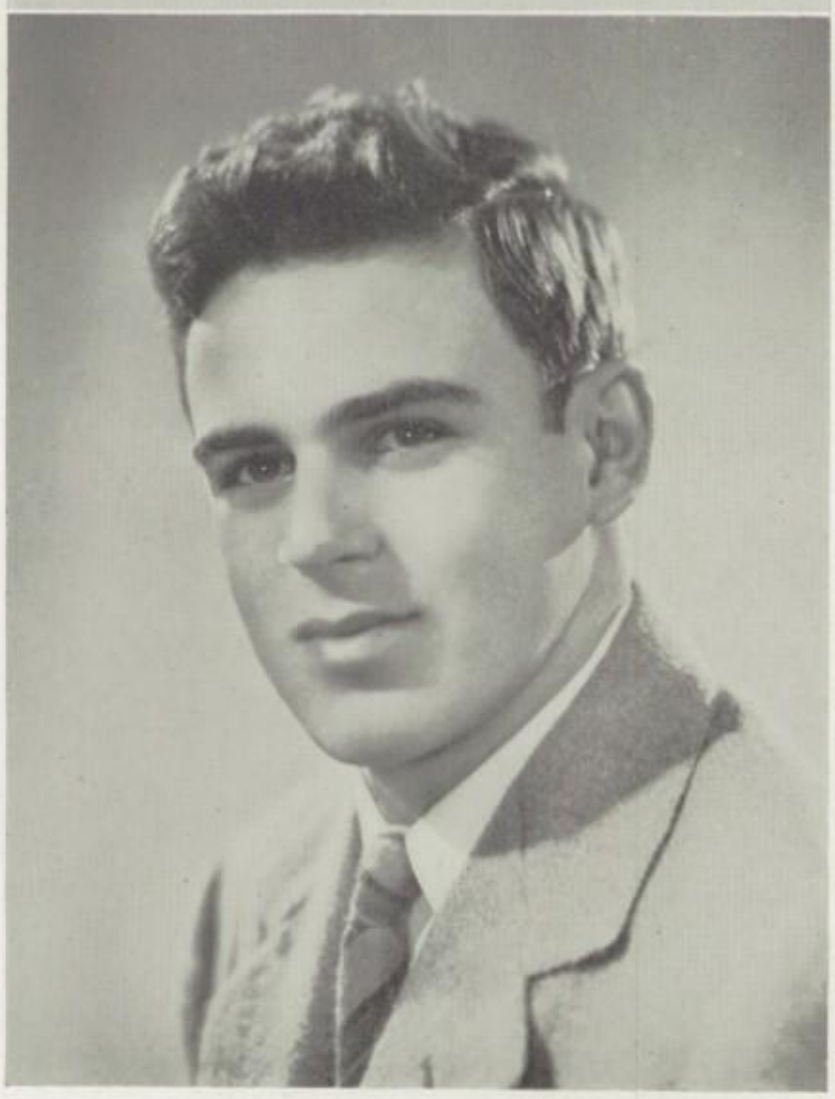
PATRICIA THORNTON BLACK

Pat is the chief supporter of the "Crosby-for-President" Club and defends "Bing" as loyally as she does "Larry," an educated Sealyham to which she claims ownership. She has struggled through six years of French and we admire her for this. Pat has spent several summers tasting of ranch life and is wildly enthusiastic about New Mexico and all things Western. Her spare time is spent in the biology lab cutting up specimens and peering hopefully into the microscope trying to find a nucleus. Pat's enjoyment of dramatics was indicated by her grand performance of "Seedy" in "Incognito." That she is amiable is shown by her great friendship with the mailman, who we feel sure helps speed mail from New Guinea. Really, Pat's one of the gayest and best of the clan.

Senior Class

FRANCES LOUISE CLARKSON

Fran is undoubtedly one of the best dressed girls in the senior class, possessing numerous plaid skirts and colorful sweaters. We can well remember the wonderful parties that she has held at her house. Fran belongs to the group of people that are always on the run to get the Ladue Local. There has scarcely been a day when she hasn't arrived at school after the final bell and inquired, "Am I late?" She can always be found with a group of senior girls after lunch playing bridge, which she does very well. Up to last year, she did a lot of swimming, diving, and tennis playing, but had to stop because of an injury to her back. Fran is quiet, reserved, thoughtful of others, and is always ready to do her share of what's to be done.



JEFFERIES McCLAIN ARRICK

Whenever the resounding phrase "Hey, Knute" bounces down the halls of J.B.S., you know that Jeff is present. Jeff, who was dubbed "King Oleo" by Mr. Obourn after his little experience in the lunchroom, sleeps, eats and enjoys life more than any other member of the senior class. However, Jeff is by no means lethargic, for in school life he maintains a good scholastic record. He has represented our grade on the Athletic Council for three years and was chosen co-president of that organization this year. Jeff is very athletically inclined having played three years on the Varsity baseball team and two years on both the Varsity football and basketball teams. Jeff's social life is never at a stand-still and he has worn many calluses "locker leaning" while talking to that "red-headed" member of the weaker sex.

JACK BAKER

One of the quieter boys in the class, Jack is also among the top few scholastically. He can often be found wherever a political disagreement is taking place, sticking up for "that man." In addition to academic ability, Jack has taken an active part in both the Junior and Senior Choruses, and is also a stalwart French horn player in the orchestra. An active participant in athletics, Jack is a sprinter of high calibre, and a left-footed soccer player of renown. Jack's phenomenal success in the Time Current Events tests is all the more remarkable since he proudly disdains to become a subscriber to Luce's sheet. An active partizan in national and other politics, he sometimes breaks his accustomed silence to put to flight any too vocal use of his very liberal opinions.

MARIA POWELL DEICHMILLER

When we see someone crunching cough drops or devouring calcium pills (literally!—by the dozen), we immediately recognize the individual as "Deich." Maria is known to the senior girls for her sympathetic understanding, consideration, and common sense; in fact, she is the outstanding member of the saner portion of the class. Deich is one of the biology "Brains." She always manages to get the animal which has just swallowed something intriguing. The majority of Maria's spare time is spent in riding; incidentally, she is a very able rider! Maria also enjoys singing, and her noble efforts have made her one of Mr. Weinrich's stand-bys since seventh grade. The quality we especially appreciate in Deich is her subtle humor which always seems to be prevalent in any discussion or "gab session."

Senior Class

SARAH ANN DOUGLAS

Sally breezed into the seventh grade at Burroughs from Ferguson, and we have been hearing about that place ever since. She has been an active member of the dramatic group since her lead in an eighth grade presentation, playing a distinctive character part in "You Can't Take It With You," and generally supervising other productions. She has kept us well supplied with juicy tidbits as Alumni Editor, no doubt gathering her information between hands of bridge. The grand success of the Senior Girls' Leap Year Dance was due primarily to Sally's hard work and ingenuity as chairman. As to sidelights: Mirthfully agreeing to attempt to improve the quality of her singing voice, she joined "The Singing Group For Those Who Can't." Also, Sally has the somewhat dubious distinction of being the only girl in her chemistry class.

ROLAND R. BAUER, JR.

Roland was the second boy to leave our class this past year. He entered Westminster College in February in order to finish as much school as possible before joining the Armed Forces. Because of his accelerated program he spent a great deal of time doing extra work. He could usually be found studying or making a dash to his next class. In spite of the serious attitude Roland assumed towards school subjects, whenever and wherever you met him, you could be sure that he would have a friendly smile and would be in a good mood. Roland's special interests lie in the artistic and dramatic fields. He is one of the class' best sculptors, and no one will ever forget the part he played in "You Can't Take It With You."

HENRY BELZ III

"Slim," as he was dubbed on returning from a thinning summer in Colorado, is one of those few persons who enjoy life to its fullest. A lover of the great out-doors, he rides and hunts as often as possible. His fondness for bow ties, grey flannel pants, argyle socks and white buck shoes is exceeded only by his deep affection for "Josephine"—his maroon Ford. How he manages, in these days of "A" cards, to keep her going is a source of amazement to all. He, surprisingly enough, would rather build a stage set than act upon one. A good "mixer," Hank is always the life of any social gathering—especially on New Year's Eve. His ability to sleep through Mr. Obourn's chem classes is admired even by the good professor himself.

CHARLOTTE MAE EATON

Anyone who sees a girl with a bright friendly smile and a head of black shining hair dashing madly for the Local, can be sure that it is none other than "Lottie." She is one of the most amiable people in the world and not only knows everything that is happening, but is usually in on it. Although she is not able to carry a tune, the "Voice" finds in her one of his most ardent supporters. Her easy-going, nonchalant manner assures her of a good time almost anywhere. She is very understanding and is always ready and willing to help other people. "Charlie's" handiwork and encouraging remarks helped animate the senior informal shots. Her part of Grace Poole in the play "Jane Eyre" will never be forgotten.

Senior Class

ABBY ELDER

A unique giggle, a ski-jump nose, and a pair of big green eyes always add up to that glamorous Elder gal. Abby is rather a quiet person, and, as has been shown in Mr. Montgomery's sixth period math class, she has a well-developed ability to blush. When Abby came back to Burroughs in the eleventh grade, she was elected Secretary of the Council at the end of that year. In this position she has proved what a responsible person she is. The Council isn't the only activity which keeps Abby busy. She is a staunch supporter of Mr. Weinrich's glee club and a valuable player on the Varsity teams. In addition to all this, "Abe" is able to get very high grades. Abby's good-natured, humorous personality made her a welcomed addition from the minute she joined our class.

RICHARD WILLIAMS BURKE

Dick is one of our most highly respected students. In his junior year he earned the nickname of "First Citizen," and in his senior year he was elected Speaker of the Assembly to succeed Art Hecker. A champion of the underdog, Dick has remained one of the few true Democrats in a school largely composed of Republicans. Being a Democrat, he gets an "A" in English. The fact that he is one of the most literary students also helps. His sympathy for the oppressed led him to be one of the editors of the ill-fated "Butts." Dick was a stalwart on the football team, receiving honorable mention on the all ABC football team. In his studies he gets very good grades, and he has participated in many extra-curricular activities, including the "World" and the Yearbook. Dick is a citizen of whom the school is proud.

BERNARD ALAN EDISON

During the six years of "Brains" attendance at Burroughs, he has constantly stood at the top of the class scholastically. He maintains a straight "A" record, a feat which has been equalled by only a very few students. Besides being an exceptional student in all his courses, Bunny has entered into many extra-curricular activities. In this past year he was the Editor-in-chief of the "World," a job which he handled with great ability. He was also an enthusiastic member of the Junior Academy of Science. Bunny got the highest score in the school on the Time Current Events Test. He is a crack shot on the basketball floor, and played a capable football end this year. A three-year man on the tennis team, he can often be seen on a spring afternoon engaged in a friendly match.

JOANNE HERMIONE FISTERE

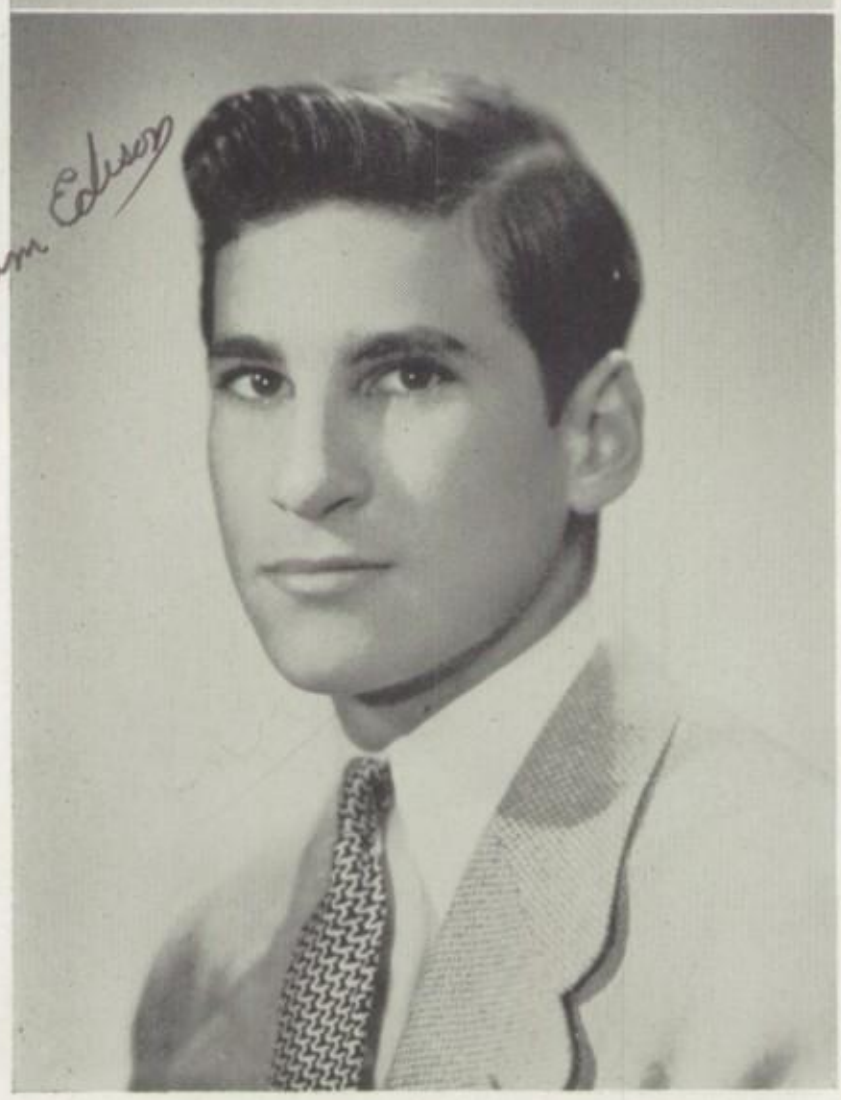
With only two years of Burroughs behind her, Joanne had the honor of being elected Treasurer of the Student Council last spring. She has taken part in many Legislative Assemblies, in which her arguments have caused quite a furor. Previous to Burroughs, she lived for thirteen years in China; consequently, she is well up on things Oriental.

Among her other achievements are the active part she has taken in dramatics (remember the Grand Duchess with the foot-long cigarette holder and the Russian accent in "You Can't Take It With You?....), making the Varsity hockey team as goalie this year, and being co-editor of the "Review." Jo, a perennial bridge player, often distracts her opponents with slightly off-key scales which may be put down as extra practice for Mr. Weinrich's "Singing Group For Those Who Can't."

Senior Class

GLORIA BELLE GARDNER

A great deal of praise goes to "Glo." Besides being one of the most popular girls in the class, she is one of the smartest. "Now you all remember to bring your money" is sure to come from Gardner, who is always collecting money—for some reason or other! The last to arrive and last to leave, "Gardner's taxi leaving in five minutes," is a familiar echo in the halls. We have never heard "Glo" say anything catty about anybody, and her jovial spirit and donkey laugh are loved by all. Gardner really "glows" on the hockey field and was the best Varsity hockey goalie J. B. has seen for years. She spent eight weeks last summer at a French camp in Vermont. We wonder if she spoke French in her numerous long-distant 'phone calls, or was she speechless?



WILLIAM MORTON EDISON

Bill is one of the nicest fellows you'll ever meet. Although always with a cheery smile on his face, he can be serious, too. A good student, he is one of the more intelligent members of the class. He is an excellent athlete, and is one of those rare phenomena—a four-letter man. Two years in a row, he was awarded the "ABC" sportsmanship award. He is a member of that staunch echelon, the "Old Guard," having started at Community School in kindergarten. One of those dreamy souls, his strong point is definitely not his memory as Miss Gilbert will testify. However, he is an outstanding Thespian and his performance as the Nazi sub captain in "Incognito" will long be remembered. His creative writing in modern verse has often appeared in the "Review."

ELLIOTT CHUBB

Burroughs first noticed the talents of Elliott when he began playing "first clarinet" in the school orchestra. Again we were agape when he captured the "lead" in the dramatic play "Incognito" last February. Chubb's scholastic standing was such that he was one out of four who received a scholarship to Miniwanca Leadership Camp. Another milestone has been reached, for now, as a conformed "excellent" student, he is able to do our assignments with no doubts as to their accuracy. Elliott played two years of "A" football but was handicapped this year by a cracked ankle. However, this did not retard him from aiding the soccer squad on to a championship. No doubt Elliott's hobby of radio was an invaluable aid in his passing the Navy Radar Test. He leaves for boot camp June ninth and we all sincerely wish him good luck.

MADELINE CHICHESTER HAERTTER

A dash of blond wavy hair, blue eyes, and a smile is "Haertter." She has kept us all in a daze with her endless talents. "Haertter" has been a strong member on every "A" team that we can remember and one of the main supporters on the Varsity hockey team where she played right wing enthusiastically and with skill. Her performance as the sarcastic Blitt in "Incognito" made a good impression on us all and as narrator at the Christmas Pageant she did an excellent job. "Maddie" is a hard worker and besides taking active parts in almost all activities, amazes us with her high grades. She is always full of pep, and possesses the admirable quality of being friendly to everyone; when "Haertter" is in the crowd, there is never a dull moment.

Senior Class

CAROL HILL

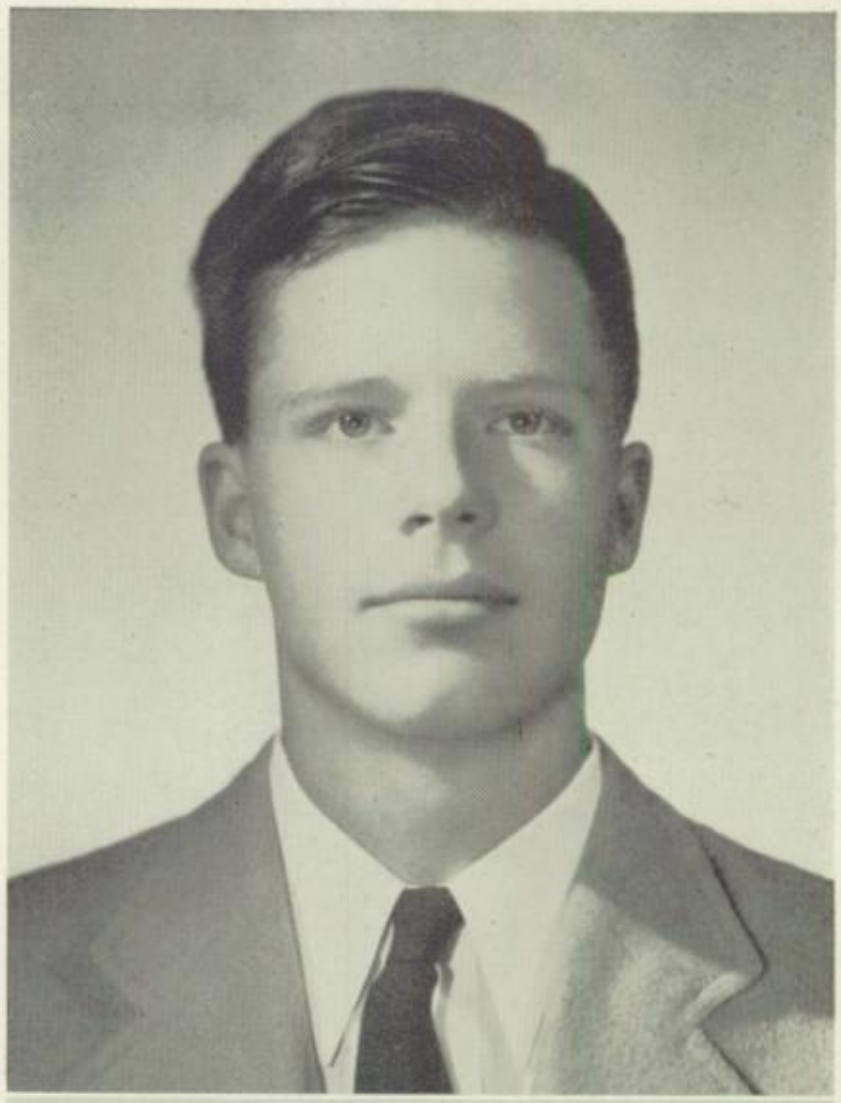
Carol loves to discuss the advantages of a farming career—and farming continues to occupy her spare time. Carol, herself, can't decide if she'd rather hit home runs in baseball or play left-half on the hockey team, but we know how valuable she has been in both places for the last four years. She has been captain of almost all the "A" teams and really adds that extra "spark." For variety, we find "Car-oil" has been a faithful member of the Rifle Club for three years; enjoys both knitting and sewing; has given many hours to hospital work; is ready for any odd job around the grounds at school, and can look as dressed up as anyone else when she puts on lipstick. Incidentally, "Car-oil" comes from a hidden ability to tinker with trucks.

ALEXANDER MOORE CORNWELL, JR.

Alec has been with us since the seventh grade and at that time was the smallest person in the class. At the present, Alec is serving his third term as the president of the class. Last year he was in charge of the construction of the Prom, which he will tell you was the best Prom the school ever had. Alec is the "Czar of the Billard and Pool Kingdom." The week end pool games at the "Cornwell Pool Hall" have many times kept young struggling students from their studies. For several years, Al had a model "T" Ford, which was his most valued possession. This he provided with a red paint job, plaid seat covers, and a checked linoleum floor. Alec is a fine student and a friend of everybody in the school.

ROBERT COIT DAY

"Bird" has excelled and made a name for himself in most of the activities at school. For the past two years he has been on the Court, serving as Chief Justice this year. Rob has certainly shown his ability in baseball by pitching several no-hit games, and always coming out ahead of the batter. Among some of the many things Rob has done in school we list: chorus, football, basketball, soccer, and Rifle Club. He was awarded the "ABC" sportsmanship award in his junior year. Robin is famous for his Indian war whoops, which can be heard almost any time in the halls at J. B. He is always a source of amusement in "Monte's" math class, and, because of his good sportsmanship and enthusiasm, he is truly liked by all who know him.



LELA COCHRAN HILL

A scream of "I haven't got a dirty face!" Or, "Who has my algebra book?" if heard early in the morning, is bound to be coming from Lela. If she isn't madly dashing to the art room for chartreuse paint, she's trying to find someone who owns a purple lipstick and a comb. Whenever the girls' advisory is in an uproar, Hill is bound to be in the middle of it, her blond head bobbing up and down. She somehow manages to maintain an excellent record, despite her interest in sports of all kinds, writing letters, dances, chocolate sundaes with chocolate sauce, and bumming rides in "Josephine." She also manages to be one of the most popular girls in the class—in her spare time, we suppose. It will be a sad day for the Glee Club, especially the "outer chorus," when Lela graduates.

Senior Class

CAROL TRAWICK HUGHES

Carol, or "Bunny" as she is known to intimate friends, is characterized by her perfect page-boy hair style and her long fingernails. She is sometimes a target for teasing, but she has the art of making people think she believes them. Her endless supply of snappy clothes never ceases to amaze us and we secretly suspect that she owns a half-interest in Peck and Peck. She is always worried about something, generally about the gas situation of "Johnny," her beloved gray and blue Buick. Her performance of Essie, the ardent ballet dancer in "You Can't Take It With You," was well done and a great source of amusement to us. Her hospitality knows no bounds and we will long remember the many house parties she has given. Carol has a winning personality and has made a real place for herself at J. B.

ROWLAND WHEELER DODSON, JR.

Athlete, poet, glee-club bass, and academic luminary partially describe Bud, one of Burroughs' all-time greats. He first caught the light of undiminished glory when, in the eighth grade, his gentle lyrics were published in the "Review." To show his versatility, he captured the heart of the "Obe" with his erudite speculations on astronomical theories. The ninth grade saw him a member of the "B" football team and a powerful bass in the Junior Chorus. From then on, everything was going his way. He became an ALL A.B.C. athlete in football, baseball, soccer, and basketball, continued to shine in academic work, and appropriated the pool table in the home of his "overseer." With the passing of the years, Bud gained greater prestige as an extraordinary personality, and increased his friendships by his unassuming manner.

JACK MOSBY GRANT

Jack is the dynamo of the senior class. His presence at school may be detected by listening in the halls early in the morning for Jack and Bud, both longers for the good old days, harmonizing on some ballad of the middle twenties. Away from school, it is a safe bet that any motorcycle whizzing by is, if not John Law, John Grant. "Jackson" was a veteran on the Varsity football and soccer teams, leading the soccer squad to its championship this year as captain. In addition, he has also served two years on the track team, and four years on the rifle team, acting as president of the latter during the past year. Jack also displayed his dramatic ability by his delineation of Lord Ingram in "Jane Eyre."

ALICIA LEU KIRCHER

Tall, dark, and beautiful is a description often applied to the Yearbook's glamorous editor-in-chief. Alicia began in the seventh grade to make herself well-known and well-liked by all. Her chic appearance, friendly personality, and such expressions as "Ah, for cry-eye," and "That's life," are familiar to all. Lus possesses a large circle of friends which includes a number of males. She has also captured the heart of the postman as he inevitably has a letter for her. Lus has serious ambitions too, as is proved by her being a star member of Miss Rehder's home economics class. She has also proved to be a very fine frog surgeon in Doc's biology lab. Her unusual abilities in sports have made her outstanding on every "A" team and Varsity squad at J. B.

Senior Class

Barry, Keep having a grand time in the wilds. Love, Nancy

NANCY JANE KOTSREAN

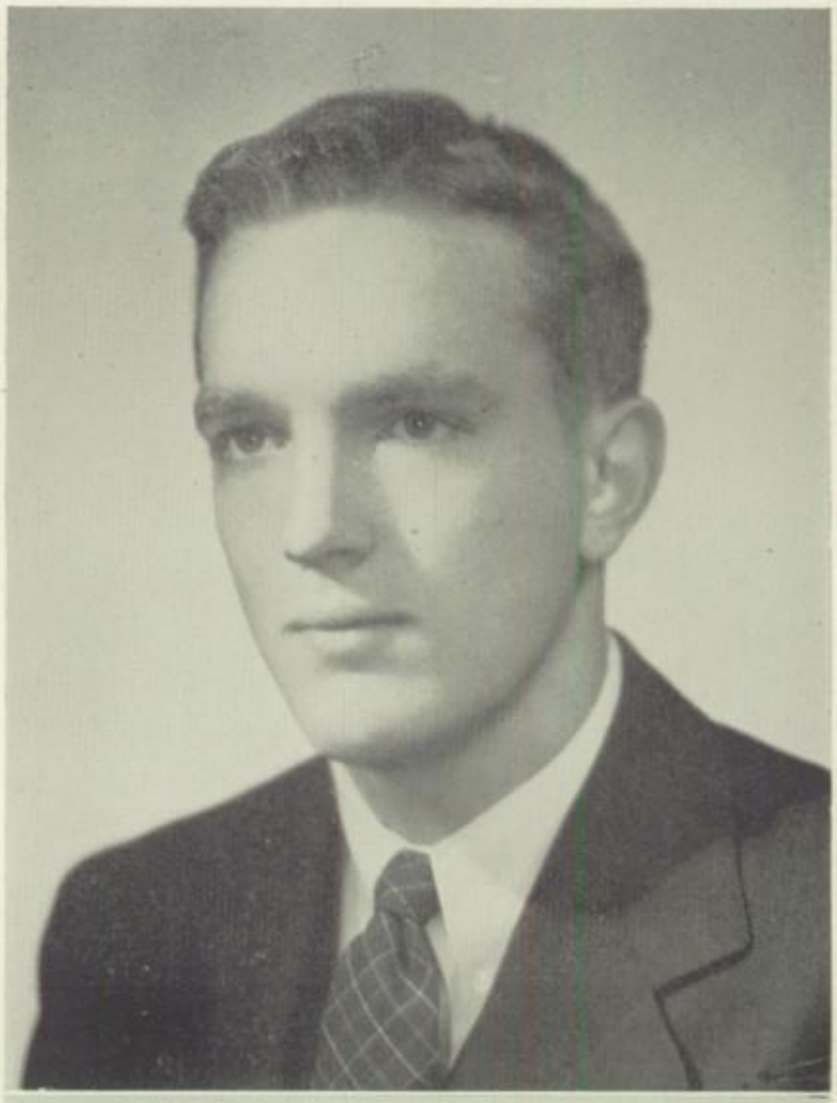
When you hear "Ah, for the life of a hermit in Wisconsin," you can be sure that this sincere wish comes from Nancy. When Kot is overcome by this desire, she longs to be canoeing in the restful environs of Wisconsin. This desire is generally prevalent when she is overburdened with homework and other worries; however, despite her many anxieties, she is always successful in any undertaking. Her talent is notably revealed in history, where she has maintained the reputation of being a better source for information than the textbook. Her favorite pastime is putting various articles on her head, which, as she explains, is due to some mysterious force compelling the article to this elevated position. Nancy will long be remembered as playing the part of "the maniac" in "Jane Eyre."

ARTHUR HECKER

Art was the first of the class to leave for the Armed Services. Being eighteen in his first semester, he enlisted in the Naval Reserve for the Radio Technician's Program. Art was a leader in school affairs. He was elected to the Student Council every year but one and held the office of Speaker of the Assembly. Art has also been active in athletics. In his junior year, he sand a leading part as the drummer boy in the "Gondoliers." And speaking of drumming, Art's beat has been heard at jam sessions on the third floor many times. With all these distinctions, Art was one of the most popular boys in the school. Let it be said, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of" . . . well, we'll leave that up to you.

WILLIAM TOLBERT KIEFFER, JR.

Ever since the eighth grade, when Bill entered our class, we have been looking up to him. He is, in fact, one of the tallest and best liked boys in our class. He has long been one of our finest athletes, serving three years on both the Varsity football and basketball teams and four years on the Varsity track team. He has also had the distinction of having been chosen on more All ABC teams than any other boy in our class. The days of the Berkshires, Ladue Locals, and tree-top houses will probably always be preserved among the most sacred of our memories. "High Pockets," as he was dubbed by Mr. Obourn, will long be remembered at Burroughs for his exceptional athletic achievements, his great following of the weaker sex, and his distinctive type of hall talking.



ELEANOR CHASE MASTIN

Nora is everyone's best friend, knowing—but not telling—more secrets than anyone else. Her collection of nicknames is remarkable. When "Stin" is not around, her gay sparkling smile is greatly missed. Her naturally curly hair, which is never disturbed by any swimming pool, and streamlined figure, which is not achieved by dieting, is envied by all. Her unlimited, bounding energy has been a mystery to us ever since the seventh grade. The girl never just walks; she dashes! Maybe that's why she's one of the most valuable "A" players. "Nona" calls her house the "Dew-Drop-Inn," and so it is. The memories of her never-to-be-forgotten parties will last forever—especially those New Year's Eve parties. We can't think of any quality lacking in "Mas," for she's a valuable and desired addition any time, anywhere.

Senior Class

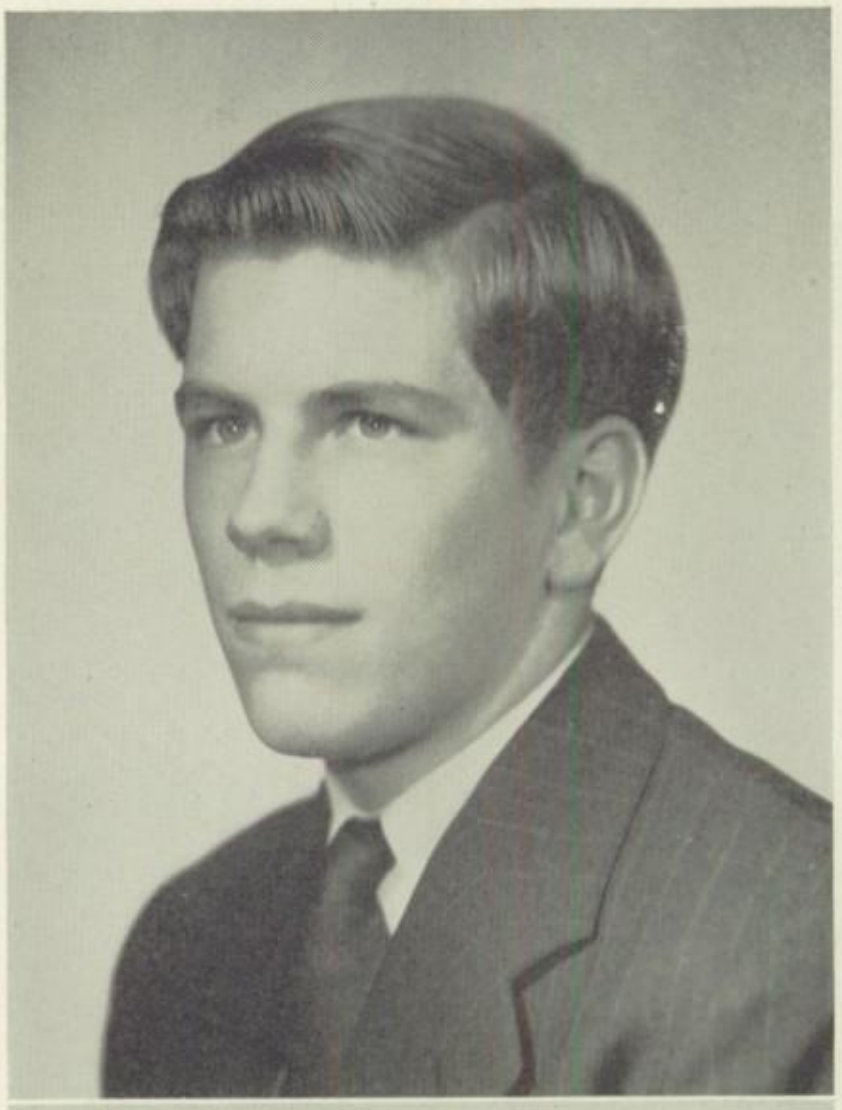
MARILYN MILLER

Long blond hair, big blue eyes, a golden sun-tan, and a shrill laugh are associated with Marilyn. She's one of those peppy girls who never tire and who contribute hysterics to any crowd. A swish, a hank, and a "Yoo-hoo" is "Mare" speeding by in her red convertible. The Chevie isn't her only prize gadget; she also has a sun lamp, a slot machine, and a lie detector, which certainly gave the Merchant Marines away. Marilyn is decidedly talented in many fields, singing the "Lullaby" in the Christmas Pageant beautifully and carrying off the lead in "You Can't Take It With You," which truly proved her ability in dramatics. Peace never reigns when the locker-room mermaid enters the gym. Marilyn is an invaluable member on all "A" teams and is known as the invincible tennis champ.

WILLIAM K. MURPHY

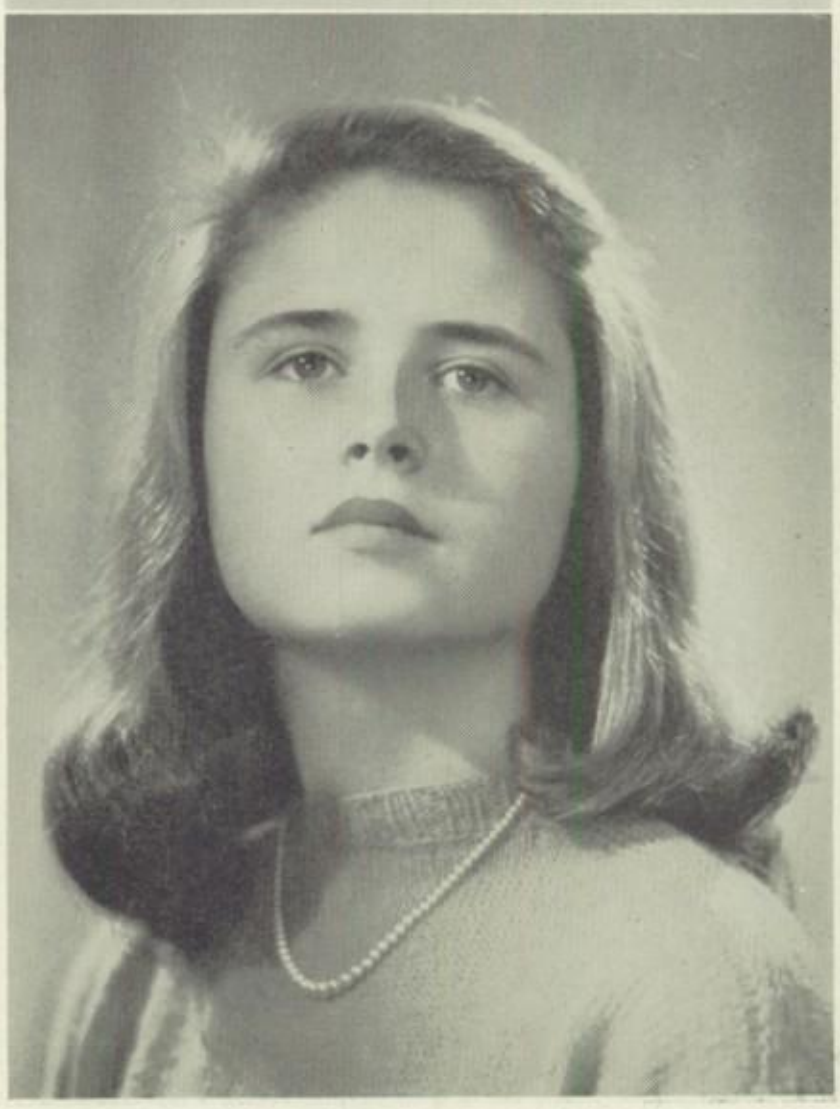
Bill, of "Murph" as he is called by his classmates, is a genial and friendly person, who can always add fun to a group. Bill has the distinction of being one of the few earnest "New Dealers" in John Burroughs School. He is often seen holding his own against an overwhelming majority of the more rabid Republicans. As one of the managers of the Varsity football team, Bill was a willing and useful worker. His main athletic endeavor, however, is tennis, a game in which he excels. He is a valuable member of the tennis team. "Murph's" main interest and enjoyment is centered in guns. A member of the rifle team, he is a very good shot. Bill is interested in the history of firearms and knows a great deal about them.

WARREN BELL OUTTEN

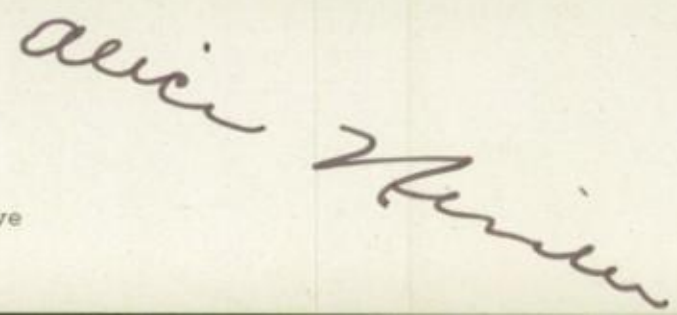


With Warren's graduation, a memorable phase of Burrough's history will have ended. The last of the Outten dynasty, he brings to a close thirteen eventful years during which one or more of the Outten boys have helped to keep things lively. "Outts' is one of the 'Old Guard' formed in Community many years ago. More recently Warren has been known for the passion of his oratory in Legislative Assemblies and the characteristic flourish of Roberts' Rules of Order; this year, however, for reasons best known to himself, he has neglected this talent. As one of the three editors of the ill-starred "Butts," he achieved very temporary fame in tenth grade. A tough customer in football, he has combined athletic ability with interest in music, riflery, etc., and is one of the best liked boys in the class.

ALICE ANN NEVILLE



If Alice's head weren't attached, she would probably lose it, for she is always perplexed by the misplacement of everything. In spite of her irresponsibility, she is always willing to lend a sympathetic and understanding ear, a quality which endears her to us all. Al has an enviable figure which is adorned by some of the best-looking clothes in the class. Come summer, her Tree-Court-acquired tan makes her the object of many a wishful glance. Last winter she tried to be a non-conformist by appearing minus all signs of makeup, but within two weeks the groans of both sexes induced her to join the "file and rank" again, Her greatest pride was her admittance into the "Singing Group for Those Who Can't." "Nev's" real claim to fame, however, was her magnificent portrayal of Jane Eyre.



Senior Class

MARILYN LOUISE PETERSON

"Pete" joined our class in the ninth grade and is a member of the "Fair Oaks Clan." Her famous hen party, which served to keep the neighbors awake, will always be remembered by all the senior girls. "Pete" contributes to numerous activities and sports, but her forte is basketball. As captain of the Senior "A" basketball team, she has led us all as high-point man. "Pete's" favorite occupation, however, is arguing with several veteran campers about the merits of Colorado ranch life. We have known her to stay up all hours of the night to finish the discussion. It is generally conceded that she wins these arguments. "Pete," with the questionable help of Pat and Carol, is continually surprising us with a new French phrase uttered with a Spanish accent.

CHARLES HAVARD PERKINS

Charlie was a newcomer to our class at the beginning of the year, but he quickly won a place among us. "Perk" has a genial disposition that has made him well liked by everyone. On the soccer field, "Chuck" was a stalwart center-half and handled that key position with skill and determination. He was a vital factor in making the team the championship aggregation that it was. It was a delightful surprise at our first class party to find that, in addition to his other talents, Charlie was a first-class pianist, who kept his classmates enthralled by a spirited performance of Boogie-Woogie. Furthermore, "Perk" has managed to get tip-top grades without seeming to do a lot of work, keeping himself constantly in the highest portion of the class scholastically.

JEROME RUBENSTEIN

Jerry has been an outstanding member of the class ever since he entered the school in eighth grade because of his jovial personality and wit, and his habit of delving into the more intellectual things of life. One of Jerry's main interests is writing and this year he has served as co-editor of the "Review." He has received letters in both basketball and football. Besides being elected captain in basketball, he won recognition on the All ABC basketball team. Jerry possesses a fine sense of humor and is always ready for a good practical joke. He has been falsely suspected of placing tar on the "Obe's" chair. An excellent student, he received one of the highest grades in the country in the Time test. This staunch personality will long be remembered at J. B.

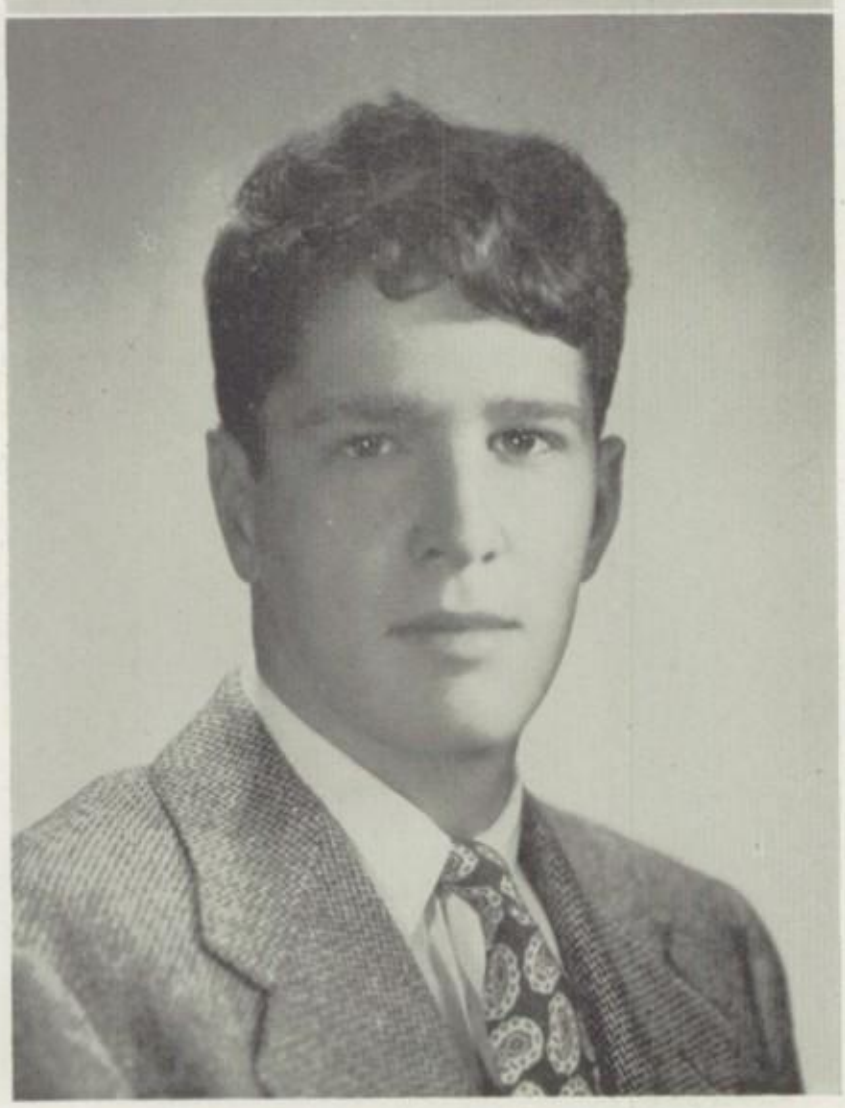
MARY STERLING PHELAN

Mary is different, always doing the unexpected—unexpected for anyone but Mary. She's the girl who cuts her hair in a, not two-inch, but half-inch hair cut. On her, it looks well. "Phe" is blessed with broad shoulders, slim hips, and the cutest smile we know. Mary is refreshingly frank, for you can always depend on her for an honest and well-considered opinion. There isn't a better friend to be had at any time. "Phe" is our "A-1" tennis player, having been on the Varsity for lo these many years. In addition to being a Varsity star, she finds time to knit all her own sweaters, and make all her own clothes! We owe "Murry" our thanks for keeping us fed during Exam weeks . . . those peanut butter sandwiches! Her departure for Black Mountain this winter left a wide gap in our class.

Senior Class

BARBARA MAE SINCOFF

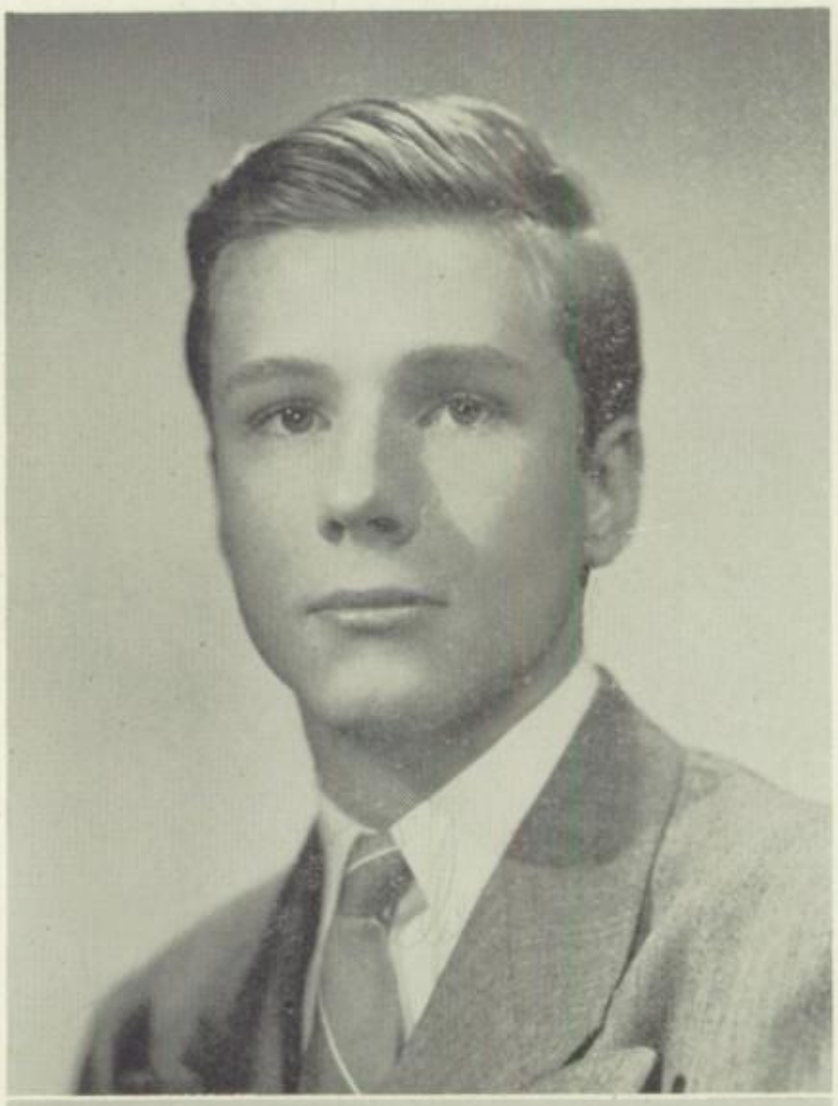
Barbara, better known as "Sinnie," is one of the class' "brain children." She has an extensive wardrobe and we notice that her predilection leans toward a certain make of dress. "Sinnie" is best known in the school for her diligent, successful efforts as Business Manager of the Yearbook. She has had more exercise getting advertisements than she has ever derived from gym—incidentally, if you ever see "Sinnie" in a gym suit—it's a mirage! She portrayed the part of an angel very impressively in the Christmas Pageant. In fact, we are now convinced of her angelic qualities. We honestly think some day we will be taking our problems to Dr. Sincoff with a Ph.D. in psychology. "Sinnie" is a firm believer in predestination, and thus she always has a gay, carefree attitude.



LYNN EVANS STUART

When chalk and questions are fired around the room, the calmest target is always "Stew." He has the knack of making quick and sure decisions and keeps them through thick and thin. Knocking off a B plus average ever since he joined us in the ninth grade, "Stew"' always has his work in on time. He has almost blackened the ceiling in "Obe's" backroom with new, exploding and never-again-seen gases. In the middle of a serious mathematical explanation, a remark from Lynn will put the whole class in stitches. He held down right tackle on the "A" football team this year and did a bang-up job on the championship "A" soccer team. All in all, Lynn is one of those people who always succeed at whatever they do.

ERWIN PETER STUPP, JR.



"Pedro," as he was dubbed by Mr. Sprague, is one of the most apt boys in the class in welding and skipping athletics. He has long had the unbeatable reputation in the office of having more acceptable excuses than all the rest of us put together, and we will always remember his red motorcycle which never seemed to work, but always seemed to get him there. If "Pete" isn't burning up the dash of his Mercury, he is usually down at the Federal Building inquiring about the Marines. When Pete is called on Thursday night, you will never find him at home, for that is his marching night down at the Armory with the State Guard. He will be remembered by most of us for making us come to school the day after the boilers broke.

JOAN LOY SPENCER

"Stinky," as she was dubbed in her second year at Burroughs, is best known for her refreshing sense of humor, and her gift of gab, which has made her a welcome addition to the famous hen parties of our august class. Her green station wagon has been a source of great convenience to her classmates, as "Stinky" can always be counted upon for transportation here, there, and everywhere. As has been displayed on the hockey field and the baseball diamond, her athletic ability is outstanding. Among her many attributes, she prizes a very good figure and it is rumored that her legs take second place to no one's. Though Joan will never have to worry about the draft, it is generally understood that, if given her choice, she would quickly join the outfit of the Bluejackets, better known as the Navy.

Joan Spence -

Senior Class

RUTH LOUISE SUNNEN

Ruth's most gracious charm is her quiet personality. She has never been known to lose her temper and, in fact, probably never will. In contrast to her personality, Ruth has a flashy red convertible that is of invaluable use to all of us on Friday afternoons. "Sunny" takes an active part in physical education and excels in all sports. She has been an inspiring captain of both the basketball and track teams. Her biology antics are of great renown—the biology class just wouldn't be the same without Ruth fleeing from one of Doc's creatures. She has even been known to shed tears over dead pickled frogs. Ruth's attractice personality and her industry indicate a bright and successful future ahead.

E. LOUIS WERNER, JR.

Lou is one of the most outstanding members of our class and a great friend to everyone. He is the President of the Student Council. Lou was quarterback on the "A" football team—and he did a great job on the basketball team, also. If a billiously loud tie is seen on someone's neck, that's Lou. "Leroy," as he is affectionately dubbed, has a great love for popular music and he owns the largest collection of records in the class. During the summer he went to Chicago for several days to hear some of the famous bands. Lou is not only an excellent athlete and active in Student Government, but he is also a good student, managing to pull down "A's" most of the time. Lou worked as a life guard at the Club this summer and it seems that he lived on sunlight and tons of ice cream.

ROBERT MILTON WILLIAMS

If one sees an ear-to-ear grin walking down the hall, or a sailor hat on a participant in a trackmeet, or a peppy little Mercury coupe blowing around town, or someone getting a "glorious" time out of life, Bob is involved. Bob, or "Dapper," is the center of life in many things. At social functions, he is noticeably present. In athletics, he captained the "B" football team to championship in his junior year, playing basketball and tennis, and picking up points for the track team by high and broad jumping. In nonacademic subjects, he adds a powerful bass part in the Chorus and works on the "Review." Bob's most notable achievements are one of the leads in the operetta, "The Gondoliers," the recipient of the Amherst cup in his junior year, and the lead part as Rochester in "Jane Eyre."

WINIFRED VALERIE TAYLOR

On a winter morning Val can be seen entering school in a surprising assortment of clothes consisting of a blouse, sweater, jacket, and scarf. How she manages to put so much beneath a coat is a topic of amazement to her classmates. Since arriving from England during the course of the eighth grade, Val has contributed a great deal to school life. Her portrayal of the inebriated Mrs. Thumbell in "Incognito" will long be remembered, as well as her hard work as an indispensible member of the Chorus. During the summer months she spends a great deal of her time on the hockey field, where she keeps in practice for shooting innumerable goals for the Varsity team. When she returns to England, we will all miss Val, especially those county dwellers who depend on her for information concerning the ever-changing Local "schedules!"

Senior Class

KATHERINE ANN WHITE

When you hear a never-ending line of chatter and see a mass of reddish-gold hair, you'll find it's Kitty. She's never without a smile for long and never without one of her hilarious jokes which she enjoys just as much as we do. Her favorite sport is eating, and it has always amazed us how she can have such a good figure after consuming ten ears of corn at one meal. Kit has been an enthusiastic member of the Glee Club ever since we can remember, but she swears Mr. Weinrich has yet to discover her talent. She is also a staunch supporter of all "A" teams and has delighted the school with "Kats Meow." Besides all these, her ability extends to the class room where she majors in high grades.

ANN NOBLE WHITTEMORE

Ann's infectious giggle is sure to put a once quiet room into gales of laughter. She is one of those rare people who appreciate honest attempts at humor. "Whit" also has her serious side, listening with understanding to numerous tales of woe and offering valuable information to any classroom. A lasting Burroughs memory will be of Ann in the Christmas Pageant. Her vibrant, dark-haired beauty made her a lovely Mary. Ann can frequently be seen in the mornings walking up the tracks eagerly discussing some interesting question with two senior girls. But what we all want to know is how she manages to walk to school on the coldest winter mornings, even when Stinky and Abby have given up the struggle—just warm-blooded, I guess. Ann has made a special place for herself around J. B.

ANNE EDDINS TAYLOR

Anne, whose middle name should be Culbertson, is among the best bridge players of the class. Carefree and good-natured, she possesses a shrewd sense of humor. She is famous for her terrific hockey drives and her naturally curly locks. Her hair is the cause of much envy and manages to look perfect, rain or shine. Anne's accomplishments are many. She is the founder of the "Singing Group For Those Who Can't," and broke precedent by being editor of the "Review" (and a very capable one) while in the eleventh grade. Her graceful, but sudden falls in the "Melodrama" of the senior party, and her chilling revivals by two glasses of water, have cemented her in our memory. This, however, is just one of the things which we fondly recall about Anne.

KEITH PHILLIPS WILLIAMS

Keith is always in the thick of things, no matter what. Whether it is an election campaign or a debate in English class, his participation always adds something to the occasion. He enters just as enthusiastically into sports. He did an excellent job at the end position on the football team, and was a regular on both the basketball and baseball teams. "K. P.'s" likeable personality is well reflected by his amusing arguments and double talk, his waving of hands when explaining some point, his dashing around in his Dodge convertible, and the good times he has during the week-ends. One of the honors he received this year was being chosen by the class to be Joseph in the Christmas Pageant. It will be a long time before Keith's stay at John Burroughs will be forgotten.

Senior Class

JUDITH JEFFRIS WILLIAMSON

If ever you chance to try to climb the steps to third floor, you are sure to stumble over a peroxide blond whose hair is always hanging at rakish angles around her face. She has made these steps her permanent sanctuary. Judy is very versatile, singing a mean harmony in her sultry blues voice. She loves poetry and may be heard reciting at points of least resistance, the favorite being "Cremation Of Sam McGee." On the hockey field she is in her prime, astonishing us all with unprecedented speed and skill. She has the kind of face you wish for and with all these amazing qualities, she still tackles the ticklish job of Secretary of the Assembly and manages to pull down straight "A's." Without her never failing wit (?) and love for bull sessions our class would have fallen apart.

of hastily-gathered Christmas trees; Hank Belz, barefooted, not-too-patiently answering questions of the surrounding admirers as to why he was "washing the rocks;" Suzie Teasdale and Carol Hill, fighting off pigeons as they clambered among the rafters tying streamers; Pete Stupp on his stomach under the fountain trying to find "that darn leak"; Bibby Ayres, after the Prom triumphantly carrying off the goldfish in one hand and her date in the other; Duff Allen and Alec "working so hard" when the picture was taken; the orchestra and their yo-yos during the intermissions.

If the Prom was the success we believe it was, we owe it to: Miss Young and Mr. Read for being so patient and generous with us; to Jack Grant, Bud Dodson, and Alec Cornwell for really getting things done; and to Pat Black, who did a good job on a less pleasant phase of the Prom. The climax of the evening was Nora's open-house and raw hamburgers. Still remembering and reliving the Prom, we floated on a pink cloud past exams and into the twelfth grade. Carol Hill's party at her farm was undoubtedly one of the best class parties we've had.

First, we had parties for our little sisters and brothers. Madeline then gave a class shindig where we welcomed our new friend, Charlie Perkins, at the same time moaning the loss of Saxon Cole, Larry Schleicher, Suzie Teasdale, and Ted Wetterau. The previous spring we had elected Abby Elder, Joanne Fistere, and Lou Werner to the Council; Robin Day, Bill Alexander, and Bud Dodson to the Court; and Art and Judy as Speaker and Secretary. It wasn't until the first day at school, however, that we realized we were SENIORS!

We soon elected our class officers—Alec, Lynn, and Sally—and busied ourselves with senior privileges, which we obtained after the first quarter. Despite Mr. Weinrich's antagonism toward the idea, we continued to lunch at Cross Roads and madly dashed back breathless for Glee Club. We found ourselves engaged in a few hurried bridge games, or frantically praying for the safety of the poor souls trapped in the Senior Boys' Room by "Monty" and "the Obe."

As the weeks rolled on, we prepared for the party to end all parties. On a rather dark and black night, the Harrises were roused by violent vibrations only to find that it was not an earthquake, but the trembling of the school's foundations; for Arrick, the Balcony lead, had just coughed. Thus we began again our gestic habits. Revelry reigned to the tune of "The Strip Polka" as Jack Baker demonstrated his ability to improvise on the French horn. The chaperones turned a very becoming blue after laughing, to put it mildly, at Maria Deichmiller tearing around with the frying pan; Frances flitting around the room a la angel (speaking of flitting, we'll never forget Anne Taylor tripping the light fantastic and falling with a dull thud to be revived by a well-aimed glass of water); Nancy Kotsrean, nonchalantly chomping her big black stogy; Hank Belz, in the role of Ralph, getting rid of an imaginary Dr. Riddle in order to fix the "unmentionable"; and Charlie Perkins, the Hoagy Carmichael

Part Two

Education

The primary purpose of John Burroughs School is to educate its three hundred students in the arts and sciences, with a view toward a more intelligent living. Fundamental to this program is the concept of the classroom as a laboratory where pupils go forward with planned activities under the supervision of the teacher. In addition, our school recognizes the educational value of many instructive activities beyond classroom work. Such outside interests require enthusiasm and cooperation, and also offer creative experiences, as well as independent growth of ideas. Education—to be of full value to each student—must carry with it an understanding and appreciation of the academic subjects and their application to his own life and those around him.

The senior class has had a good year. They took over their job of leading the school and out-did themselves by producing two Speakers, Secretary of the Assembly, President of the Council, and Chief Justice of the Court. This class has been very interested in Student Government and has participated in several interesting assemblies.

This versatile class has had important positions on this year's World, Yearbook, and Review. The two dramatic presentations "Incognito" and "Jane Eyre" carried casts composed largely of seniors.

The class continued its tradition of party giving with the unforgettable stunt performances at the December class party which was topped off by the famous unveiling by the senior boys. Stag and hen parties have been prevalent in great numbers this year, and square dances were inaugurated into Friday night activities for seniors only.

While mentioning unforgettables, let's not forget the Senior Girls' Leap Year Dance and its eerie atmosphere.

The seniors have always been interested in athletics and this year, as usual, many were on Varsity teams.

Eleventh Grade

Now that we're in the eleventh grade, we feel quite superior. We're not confused any more by the great senior school, and can take our places in the groove with ease.

Two of our members were on the Council and one on the Court.

The boys shone in their skillful playing on the A, B, and C teams of all sports, and many contributed to the championship of the A soccer and basketball. The girls won the interclass tournaments in hockey, soccer, and basketball.

A great number of juniors participated in "Incognito," "Jane Eyre," and the third play in the spring. The Glee Club, Rifle Club, Orchestra, World, Review, and Yearbook were also graced by juniors.

Our greatest glory of the year was the Junior Prom, which due to hard work and cooperation was one of the best in Burroughs' history.

This year was a good year for the juniors. We had a lot of fun, and we accomplished a lot.

The sophomore class of 1944-45 has been well represented by the students in many school activities. There are active members on the Student Council and Student Court. Sophomores form a substantial part of the Glee Club, the Yearbook, Review, World, Rifle Club, Photography Club, and the sculpture and painting classes have also received loyal support from the tenth grade. Dramatic talent was shown in two one-act plays, "Ringing In the Groom" and " The Strangest Feeling."

The sophomore boys have taken an active part in all sports and have shown real ability on the A, B, and C teams. The girls' team did not rank highest in inter-class and inter-school games, but they have made steady progress, and prospects for next year are most promising.

Class parties during the year were successful due to the enthusiasm and effort of the students. Members of the class believe the party at the "Pink Elephant" night club the best ever given.

Ninth Grade

With two ninth-graders serving on the Council, two on the World staff, and the majority of the class in the Junior Chorus, the ninth grade students have taken a major part in school activities this year.

The "C" football team, composed mostly of ninth-graders, won the A.B.C. championship by a large margin. They were not defeated, not scored upon, and only one time did they allow the opposing team to cross their 50-yard line.

The ninth grade had two parties—both very successful. At Thanksgiving time there was a Harvest Dance, and in February there was another party.

In late October one of the election assemblies was given by the ninth grade students, who explained how the Electoral College operates.

During senior mid-year exams, one of the ninth grade English classes took over the issue of the World for that time. The class worked hard and published an excellent World.

The ninth grade is eagerly looking forward to joining the Senior School next year.

The eighth grade this year has taken a large part in the activities of the school. One member is on the Student Council and another on the World staff. The eighth graders form a substantial part of the junior school orchestra, and more than half the class are in the junior chorus.

The first class party of the year was a barn dance. It started with a dinner at the barbecue pit, followed by square dancing in the Burroughs gym. The second class party, held in April, was considered a great success.

The class has taken a great interest in all athletics, the boys on the Army and Navy teams and the girls on the Blue and Gold teams. The competition for the cup, presented either to the Blue or Gold team, according to the number of points earned during the season, has created much enthusiasm. Members of the class were on the "C" teams this year, a new distinction for the eighth grade.

Seventh Grade

Our seventh grade has not done anything especially outstanding, but we do participate in many different activities.

At the beginning of the school year we were chosen as little sisters and brothers by the senior boys and girls. We always meet our big sisters and brothers at the foot of the south stairs or else at the door of our home room. Then we all go over to the assembly. There we speak up on matters brought before the whole school, and our unknown geniuses will probably start sprouting in the next year or two. Sometimes some of us go out for lunch with our big brothers and sisters on Saturday afternoons.

We had a party a few weeks before Christmas, which consisted of clapping and romping games and a good dinner. It was all great fun.

Although we are the youngest class in the school, no one can possibly overlook us. In years to come, we will make ourselves better known.

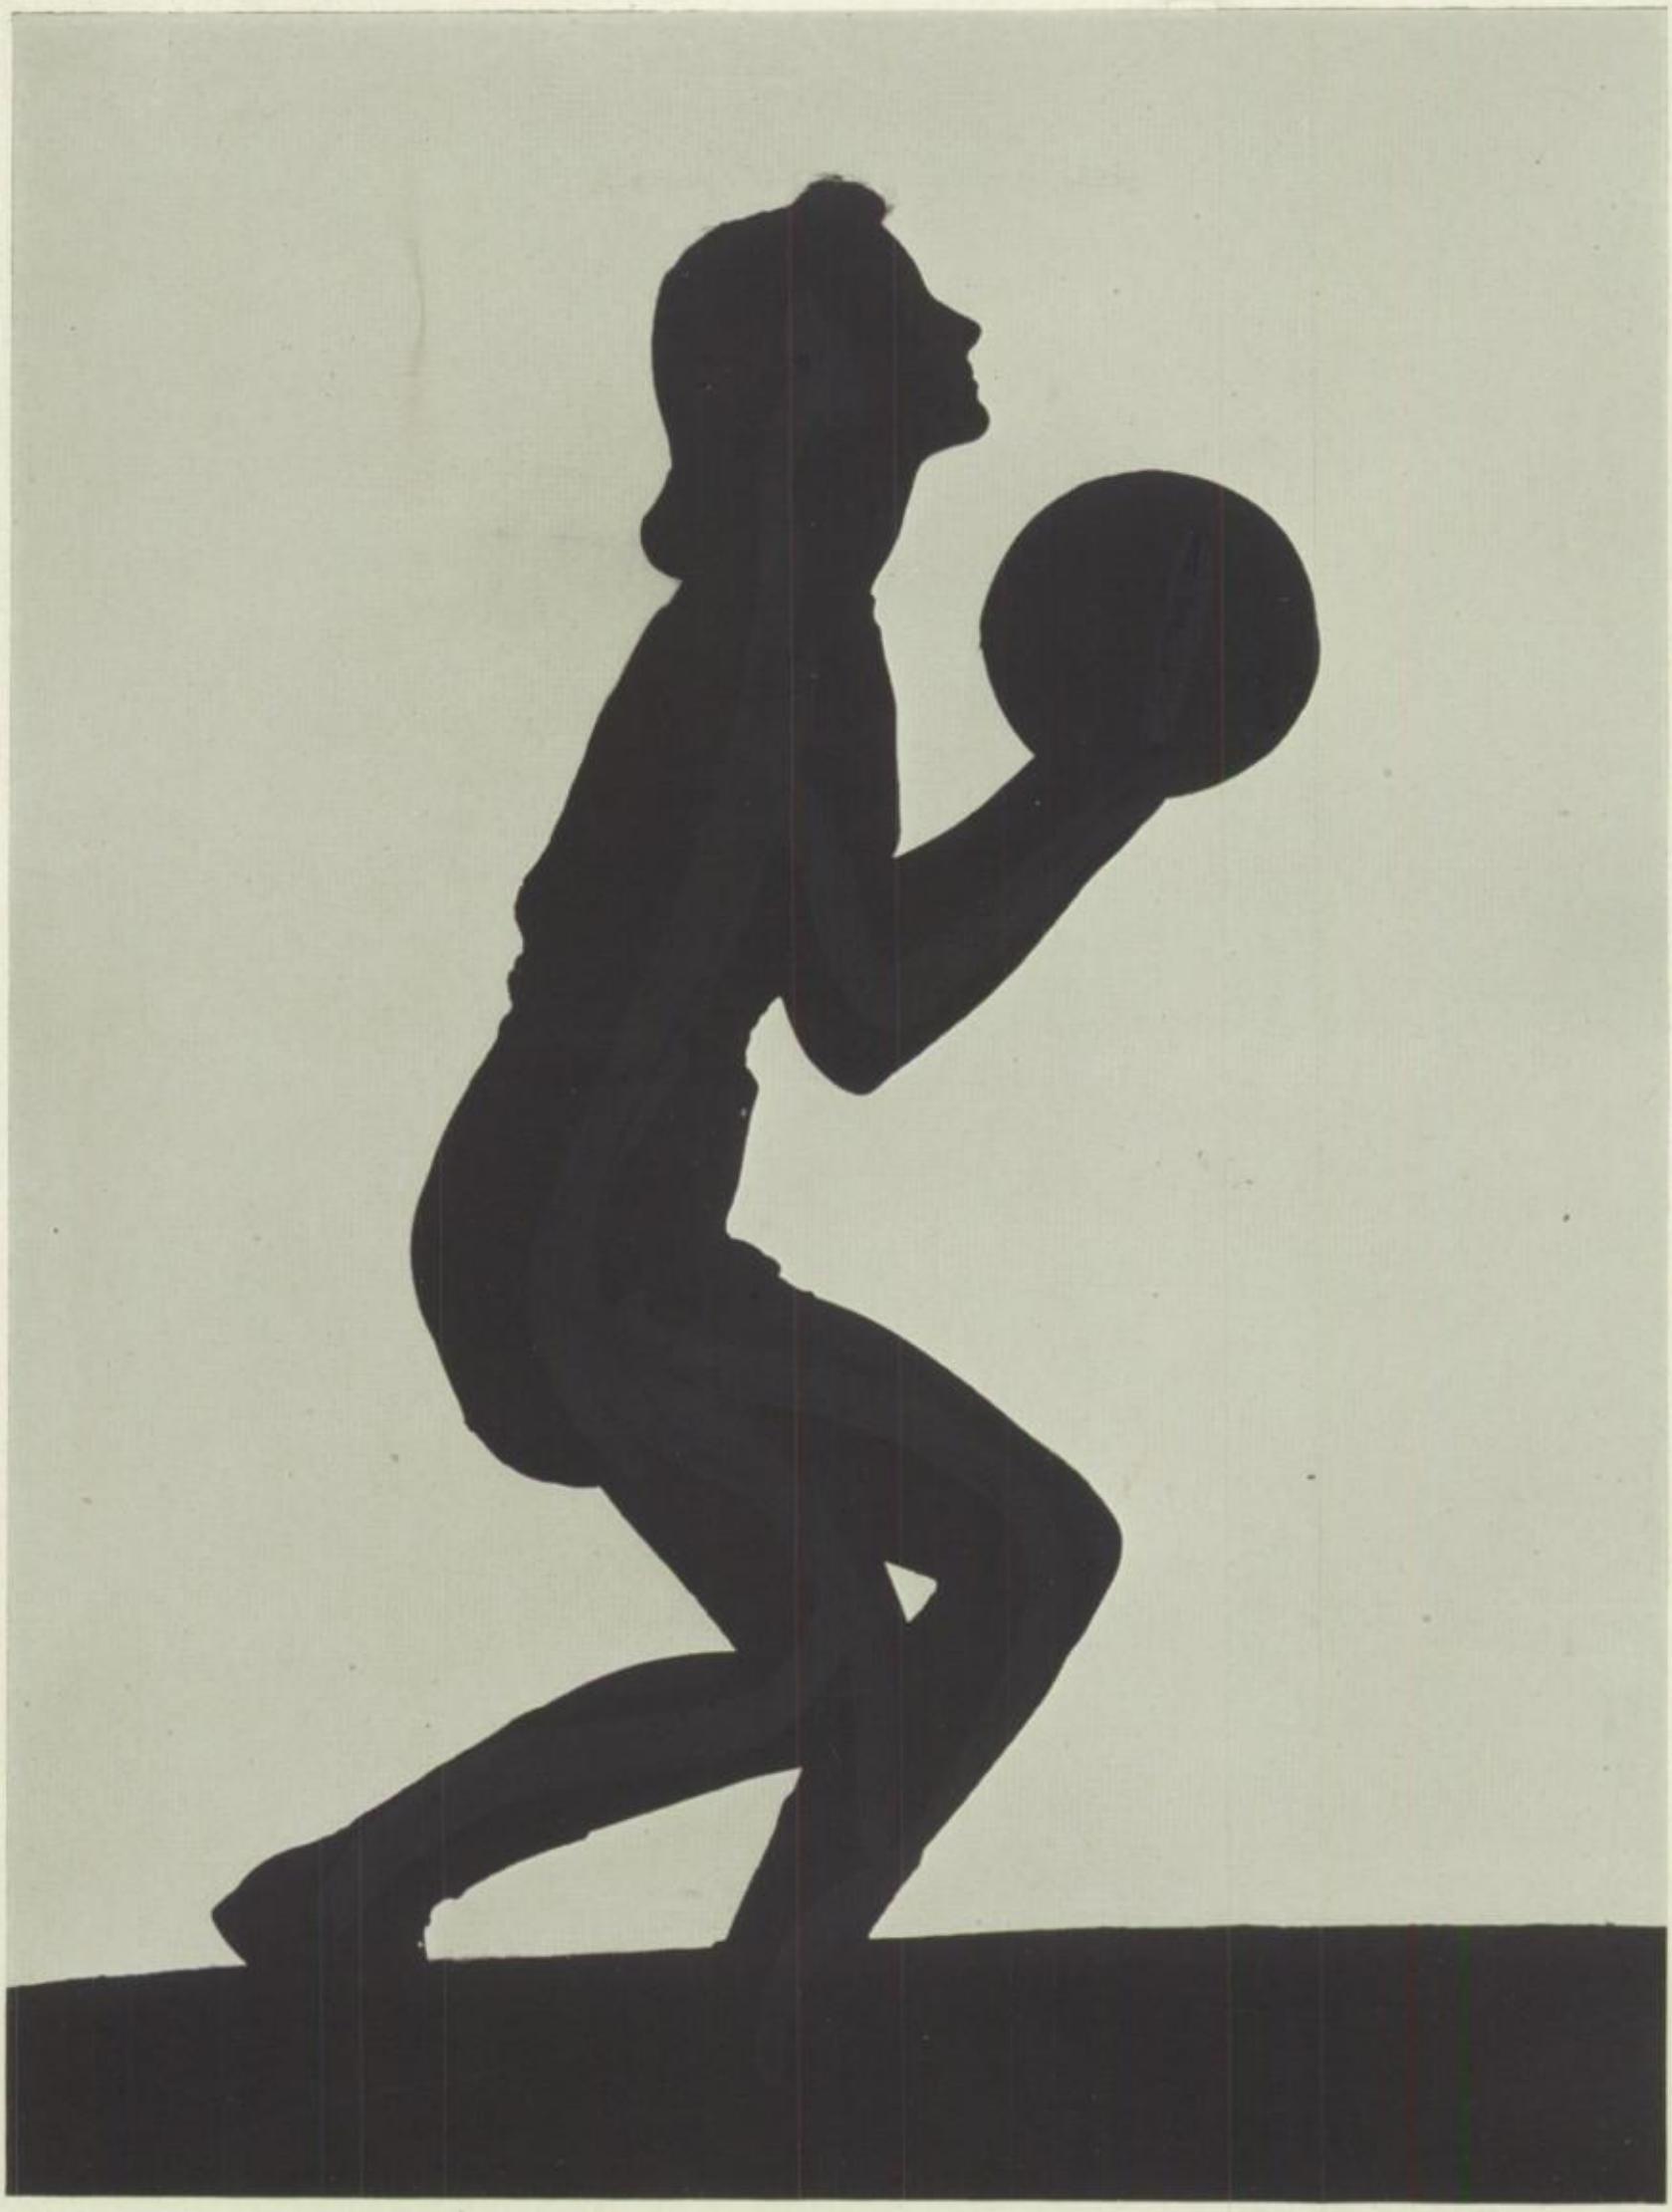
Part Three

Athletics

Health and physical education are a vital part of the John Burroughs educational program. Good sportsmanship is emphasized, together with fair play and vigorous competition. The ABC system allows every boy to gain valuable playing experience, regardless of age or size. Burroughs athletes are well-known for their ability and sense of fair play. Girls' sports consist mainly of inter-class games which are played with enthusiasm and a keen sense of competition. The athletic season ends each year with the Athletic Banquet, at which awards are given for all outstanding individual and team accomplishments in the line of sports.



M. Miller, Miss Beaman, N. Mastin, Miss Cornwell, Miss Meerdink, M. Haertter.

Varsity Hockey

The first Varsity Hockey game was played Saturday morning, October 28, 1944, with Principia at Burroughs. Both the first and second Varsity teams played.

Principia was the first to score. They made their two goals in the first five minutes of the game. After the first bully, Principia got the ball and passed it to their right wing. The ball was carried down by their right inner passing all players on our left side. After the goal was made, and before our goal keeper had recovered, a second goal was made. At this point, substitutes were added.

The game was a wide-open passing game, including triangle passes, and well-timed and well-directed hits. After the two goals had been made, the rest of the game was played almost completely with Burroughs attacking Principia's goal.

After twenty minutes of play, the first half was over with Principia leading 2-0. Burroughs had something to talk over in the half. The first Burroughs goal was made by Madeline Haertter, the right wing, off a good pass by Valerie Taylor, with half the playing time in the last half remaining. During the second half, Principia did not get the ball back into Burroughs' territory. The final Burroughs goal was also made by the right wing from a roll in, with about three minutes to go. The game ended with the score tied, 2-2.

The purpose of Interclass Hockey is to give valuable practice in playing to every Burroughs girl. Only in this way can a girl put to use the techniques that have been learned. It not only aids the girls in getting needed experience, but also helps develop sportsmanship. This year, there was more competition and rivalry than has been seen for some time.

There have been several very close games—for instance, the first Senior-Junior game. The Seniors won 3 to 1 in the last minutes of play on goals by Mastin, L. Hill, and Taylor. The Juniors resolved to win the next game, and so with brilliant passing by the forward line Ib Gray made a beautiful goal from her left inner position, catching the Senior backs off guard. If the Juniors retain the prowess they displayed this year, there will be no doubt of their invincibility next year.

Very good material was shown this year in the Sophomores and Freshmen, the latter having benefitted from the teaching of passes and lunges given them by the Seniors. The Freshmen exhibited their talent in games with the Sophomores, with Janie Hamilton swinging a mean shoe as Freshman goalie, and Gamble and Gardner starring in the forward line. But the Sophomores put that little white ball in the goal twice on two beautiful dodges by Edith Freund.

It has been a good year in every way, as all teams have shown the finest type of spirit. We owe much credit to Miss Beaman, Miss Cornwell, and Miss Meerdink.

Burroughs Freshmen did well in their first interscholastic games, winning both from Principia—"A" team, 3 to 1, "B" team, 2 to 0. Both teams played a fast and interesting game. The Sophomore games were called off on account of the weather.

The Juniors beat Principia, 1 to 0, on a very muddy field. Nevertheless, the teams played well, with Mary Bry making the goal. The Seniors played a very active game, beating Principia, 3 to 1. The teamwork was outstanding, and Ruth Sunnen scored on a beautiful shot from the right half back position. Nora Mastin and Valerie Taylor made the other goals.

Soccer

Soccer is a favorite with most Burroughs' girls. It is played during the same season as basketball, so an interesting and healthy combination of sports is offered to each girl. Although no games are played with other schools, the competition between classes is vigorous. Soccer is a game that seems to increase in enthusiasm as the weather grows colder and damper, and the ground becomes muddy and slippery. The rules are not overly strict, so fast, hilarious games are the usual outcome.

This season's competition resulted in the Juniors', well-captained by Joan Johns, winning four games and tying two. The Seniors, under Nora Mastin's leadership, were next, winning three games, tying two, and losing one. The Freshmen under Betty Bry, and the Sophomores, led by Janet Meyer, were in third and fourth place respectively.

Basketball

This year under our new coach, Miss Marjorie Meerdink, the girls' basketball teams had a long and busy season. The usual interclass A and B competitions were played with an enthusiasm and interest exceeding that of previous class teams. The season started with the classes mixed together in basketball drill. Miss Meerdink then began coaching the teams separately with each class developing its own plays. The Juniors produced a score of fancy maneuvers which may have been the reason for their B team's winning its tournament. However, the Junior A's tied with the Senior A's in spite of the fact that in the whole season the Seniors used only one play, the Blockade, consistently and not too subtly.

Near the end of the season, the A and B basketball teams of each class played the corresponding teams at Principia. These were our only interschool games and not too successful, since Prin won every game.

The inter-class competition has been continued this spring in volleyball. Each class has three teams, the "A", "B", and "C". The girls' gymnasium has been divided into three courts; so that all three teams can play at one time.

After nine inter-class games had been played, the Juniors were ahead, and the Seniors and Sophomores were tied for second place. The Freshman-Sophomore game was a very close race, but the Freshmen won, 21-22! Joan Weir, Carol Gamble, and Betsey Bowen have done fine jobs on the Freshman "A", "B", and "C" teams, while Ruth Magee, Joanne Draughon, and Marjorie Copher have carried high the tenth grade banner. Competition has been keen between the Juniors and Seniors, too; Janey Studt, Ann Brown, and Mary Bry have done their bit for the Juniors, while Ruth Sunnen, Val Taylor, and Marilyn Peterson have played hard and well for the Seniors.

Each year six girls are chosen from the junior and senior classes to play Principia's varsity team. Kitty White is the only returning member from last year's team. A new member from the senior class is Valerie Taylor. The junior class is well represented by Elizabeth Ann Gray, Mary Bry, Shelia Murphy, and Carol Cook. Several varsity members, composed of other best players in the school, were chosen for the squad. The team is scheduled to play Principia, May 17.

There has been keen rivalry in baseball between the junior and senior classes, the juniors being capably managed by their captain, Ann Grace; the seniors by Kitty White. Carol Hill and Madeline Haertter showed unusual skill on the playing field, while Bitsy Harris, Anne Brown, and Harriet Rodes upheld the honor of the junior class. This year's junior team has a good chance to win the baseball championship since it is composed of the same players who won the tournament last year.

Field Day

Each year the climax of the athletic season comes in the spring with the Athletic Banquet and Field Day. The entire school takes a day off from studies and joins in the rivalry.

There is stiff competition between senior school classes for the cup. Junior school teams also join in the excitement with the Blue and Navy and Gold and Army fighting it out. Students enter in many events and cheer wildly for their classmates. Races, high-jumping, and pole-vaulting are only a few of the numerous scheduled activities.

At noon everyone gathers in the big gym for the banquet, after which the awards are presented. There are interesting talks by guest speakers and the boys receive their certificates and letters and the girls are awarded athletic certificates and medals. The biggest event of Field Day is the presentation of the cup to the senior boy and girl who have shown outstanding athletic ability, sportmanship, leadership, and co-operation.

The whole day is one of excitement and gaiety.

The seventh and eighth grade girls are divided into two athletic teams: the Blue and the Gold. They compete with each other in hockey, basketball, soccer, volleyball, baseball, and track. There is close competition as both teams fight hard for the cup which is given at the Athletic Banquet.

Last fall the year started out with hockey. The coaches, Miss Beaman, Miss Cornwell, and Miss Meerdink did a fine job with both teams. Although hockey was new to the seventh grade, they learned quickly and were soon chasing their opponents up and down the field. The Blues led, winning six out of fourteen of these games, but the remaining eight were tied.

As the weather got colder, our versatile hockey coaches became basketball coaches. The games were as exciting as the hockey games, and the Blues were again ahead, winning four out of six games.

and Gold

After Christmas vacation, the girls started on a new physical fitness program. This included push-ups, rope climbing, exercises, and tumbling. The purpose of these difficult activities was to improve posture and develop muscles not used in other sports.

With improved weather conditions, Blue and Gold soccer games began. These were very good games because few were won by more than one point, and the Blues won three of the four games played.

The volleyball and baseball scores are not yet complete. Although the Blues are ahead, there is some assurance that the Golds will swing into the lead. Tennis is also very popular, and there are two ladder tournaments, one for each grade, in full swing. Every sunny day finds girls on the courts.

We have had a lot of fun this year, and we all hope that our figures have improved, as well as our muscles.

A tense moment in the Clayton game.

"A" Football

The John Burroughs football team of 1944 had an average season, winning three games, losing four, and tying one. Despite the return of eleven lettermen, and fifteen lettermen from last year's Championship "B" team, the team did not show its expected power, and failed to come through in the clutches. Although the prospects at the beginning of the season appeared good, a very light line and numerous injuries hampered the Bombers.

The team was coached by Mr. Lyle Bennett, former assistant to Fritz Crisler. This year's team was always in top condition physically; however, in crucial spots its light weight often placed a handicap on the players. In several games, notably those against Western and Clayton, the Bombers came back in the second half to outplay and out-fight their favored opponents. The team was captained by Bud Dodson, the unanimous choice of his teammates and varsity letterman for three years. The team possessed excellent spirit and made up in fight what it lacked in size and weight.

The season opened with a game against the University City reserves, and the game resulted in a 6 to 6 tie. The ball-handling was poor, and the tackling left much to be desired. In the second quarter, following an intercepted pass, Burroughs started a march which terminated in a touchdown pass from Mueller to Kieffer. However, in the fourth quarter, U. City scored.

In the second game of the season Burroughs was edged out 6 to 0 by Chaminade. The field was muddy, and play was confined to the ground and power-plays. In the second half Chaminade scored on a fifty-yard touchdown march. Our blocking and tackling were, generally speaking, weak, and our backs could not gain through the strong Chaminade line.

In the third game, the Bombers smothered a weak Roxana team by the score of 32 to 0. The first two touchdowns were made by Daniel, the first on a 30-yard run and the second on an 85-yard run-back of an intercepted pass, both behind excellent blocking. The other three touchdowns were scored by Kieffer, two on long passes, and the other on an end-around play. In this game the blocking and tackling were much improved, and the great work of the line was largely responsible for the overwhelming victory.

The next game was with Western at Alton, where the Bombers lost a close encounter to the Cadets by a score of 13 to 7. Hunter scored for Western on a short run in the second quarter. However, Burroughs came back strong in the second half, using both passing plays to good advantage. Schneider ran the ball deep into Western territory whereupon Schneider took the ball over the goal line behind excellent downfield blocking. Werner successfully converted the extra point to put Burroughs ahead 7 to 6. However, in the closing minutes of play, Western completed a long pass in the end-zone and kicked the extra point. The game ended, 13 to 7.

At Clayton the Bombers played a poor first half, and were losing 26 to 6 at the half. However, in the second half, Burroughs outplayed and out-gained the cocky Clayton eleven. Daniel ran 84 yards for one touchdown for Burroughs while Bud Dodson added another. A safety was scored when Clayton attempted to punt. The final score was in Clayton's favor, 31 to 15.

Playing its second ABC League game of the season, Burroughs romped to a 32 to 6 victory over Principia. Touchdowns were made for Burroughs by Werner, Daniel, Schneider, Kieffer, and Goessling. Principia's score came in the fourth quarter. The game was wholly Burroughs, with never any doubt as to the outcome. The seventh game of the season was with Crystal City. Burroughs won this game, 20 to 0, thus taking revenge for last year's defeat. The game was played at Burroughs in a spasmodic rain, on a field which was several inches deep in water. Daniel scored two touchdowns on long runs, and Kieffer scored the other on a short screen-pass. Crystal City could not gain through the strong Burroughs line, and they were frequently thrown back for large losses.

In the final game against the traditional rival, Country Day, Burroughs was swamped 20 to 0. Burroughs' offense failed to materialize, and the defensive game failed to live up to prediction. Codasco's machine-like offense smashed through Burroughs' line for short gains again and again to march slowly down the field. The Burroughs backs could not gain through the strong Country Day line. Gordon, the Codasco fullback, scored all three touchdowns. In the second quarter Burroughs was held on the Codasco twenty-four yard line, and the next Burroughs threat was not until the closing minutes of the game. Mueller passed forty yards to Kieffer to the Codasco thirty. Minton carried the ball to the nineteen, Dodson to the thirteen, and Goessling to the ten-yard line as the game ended. Captain Dodson played his usual brilliant defensive game. This was the last game for sixteen Burroughs players.

Several Burroughs boys were placed on the official all ABC Team for 1944. Rowland Dodson, captain and fullback, and Bill Kieffer, high-scoring end received berths on the team, as did Al Schneider and Peyton Daniel, halfbacks. Jim Kelly, center, and Dick Burke, tackle, received honorable mention.

Duff Allen nearly blocks a Principia punt as opponents kick out of danger.

The John Burroughs "B" football team had a fair season, winning two games, losing three, and tying one. This somewhat disappointing result was due in large part to several losses through injuries. Nevy Grant broke a leg early in the year and was lost for the season, Bunny Edison missed the latter half of the season with pneumonia, and Bill Costen was out a great deal with a broken nose.

The Bulldogs opened their season with a 6 to 0 victory over Principia in a well-played game. The following week they played a hard-fought game with Western, which was lost by the close score of 8 to 6, in spite of excellent playing. The first half of the season was brought to a close with a thrilling 6 to 0 victory over Codasco. Bill Scott scored on the fourth down in the waning minutes of the game to give Coach Read's men their well-deserved victory.

Playing their worst game of the season, the "B" team was severely trounced by an improved Western team—20 to 0, at Alton. A week later, they suffered three golden opportunities to score by goal-line fumbles, ending the game in a scoreless tie with Principia. The final game of the season resulted in a 7 to 0 loss to Country Day, in which a sixty-yard run by Scott on a Statue-of-Liberty play went for naught.

"C" Football

The John Burroughs "C" football team, under the excellent guidance of Coach George Staten, marched to an undisputed championship in the "C" division of the A.B.C. League. The Junior Bombers were unscored upon during the entire season.

The first game with Principia resulted in a 12 to 0 victory for the "C" teamers. Sam Grant on the first play of the game ran 83 yards for a touchdown. Later on, Stupp flipped a touchdown pass to Buxell for the second score. Alan Siegerist and Ed McCulloch shared the scoring honors in the team's first game with Western. Siegerist went over for two touchdowns and one extra point; McCulloch bucked the line for seven points. Dave Sisler and Byram Thies, eighth graders, also helped the "C" teamers.

In their third game of the season, the Junior Bombers took the lead in the ABC League by defeating Country Day 7 to 0. Alan Siegerist turned the tide by scoring the only touchdown of the game early in the fourth quarter.

The much improved Western team held the "C" teamers to a scoreless tie in their second meeting. A number of bad breaks and loose plays prevented the Statenmen from capturing their fourth victory.

The Statenmen beat Principia decisively in the fifth game of the season. Ray Bolin scored nine points in this game, as the weak Principia team was no match for the Junior Bombers.

Codasco was defeated in the last game of the season 20 to 0. Grant scored two touchdowns and McCulloch one. The Statenmen forcefully showed that they were the superior of the two teams.

Bolin, J. Kearney, E. McCulloch, A. Deichmiller, R. Day, W. Alexander, R. Altvater, W. Petring, D. Allen, M. Goldman.

The John Burroughs Championship "A" Soccer Team had a very successful season, being undefeated in ABC League competition. The team featured speed and cooperation on the field and excellent coaching from the side lines. Coach Les Hatchard, aided by Mr. Haertter, is largely responsible for the championship team which scored four victories and two ties in League competition.

The complete record of this team is: five victories, three ties, and two defeats. The victories were scored over Western (2), Principia (2), and the Pelicans (a Muny League team). Codasco tied the Bombers twice and Chaminade once, while Chaminade and St. John succeeded in defeating the Bombers, each by a score of one to nothing.

The opening game was with the Pelicans, played with the remnants of a previous snow which had frozen on the ground. Since it was the first game the boys had played together, it took the first half to get oriented, and the half ended in a scoreless tie. But in the second half, Scott and Seldin succeeded in scoring and the final score appeared as two to nothing in favor of the Bombers.

At Chaminade, the Bombers encountered the highly rated Red Devils, with the ground again white with snow and the thermometer hovering near zero. The game see-sawed evenly from side to side for the majority of the game, but in the last half, Chaminade made the lone tally and the game terminated at one to nothing.

Then the Bombers went to Codasco to meet Country Day on a field bogged down by six inches of pure "slop." As a result of the mud, the game turned into a kick-and-run affair ending in a one-to-one tie. Early in the first half, Scott drove the ball between the goal posts and immediately afterward, Seldin missed by inches another shot. Within the last few minutes of the game, Codasco scored and here the game ended.

The Bombers then journeyed to Western to play the second League game of the season, which the Bombers won by the close score of three to two. By the end of the first half, the score was two to nothing in favor of Burroughs as a result of two well-directed shots by Daniel and Scott. But in the second half, Western opened by driving the ball quickly through

"A" Soccer

Burroughs' goal. After considerable scrimmaging, Roger Altvater scored the final Burroughs goal on a beautiful shot. Western put through their final goal in the closing minutes of the game, and there the game ended.

In the first League game on their home field, Burroughs walked over a new and inexperienced Principia team by the score of five to nothing. For the first time during the season the field was not sloppy, and the sun was shining. In the first half, Costen, Scott, and Seldin scored to start the Bombers off, and in the second half, Seldin drove in his second goal, with Scott scoring in the last ten minutes of the game on a penalty kick.

Country Day then came to John Burroughs to play the Bombers in a game which could have been the deciding game for the championship. Both teams played well for the entire game, with the Bombers holding the initiative for the greater part of the game, but neither team could put through the winning goal.

The next game was with the much improved Principia team on their own field. The final score was three to nothing in favor of the Bombers, which is a remarkable score considering that the game was played in six inches of mud. The three goals for Burroughs were scored by Day, Grant, and Daniel.

On the final League game, climaxing a long championship drive, the Bombers defeated Western in their best-played game of the season by a score of three to nothing. Scott, Seldin, and Day were the heroes of this championship game.

In non-league competition following the season, Burroughs put the only blemish on Chaminade's record of eight straight victories by holding them to a one-to-one tie. In the final game of the year, St. John defeated the Bombers by a score of one to nothing.

Looking back, we find that in League competition, Burroughs scored fifteen goals to three for their opponents, and in all their games, the number is eighteen to six. The high-scoring man for the year was co-Captain Bill Scott, who scored seven times during the year. Next in line are Seldin with four, Day and Daniel with two each, and co-Captain Grant, Altvater, and Costen with one apiece.

Bill Scott attempts a goal against Western. By defeating Western the Bombers clinched the ABC League Championship.

Bismark game in Normandy Tournament.

"A" Basketball

The Basketball season of 1944-45 was only fairly successful for the Bombers, who won six games and lost twelve. There were seven returning lettermen and five men from last year's "B" team. The team was well coached by Lyle Bennett, who brought a wealth of knowledge with him from Michigan. The season as a whole was disappointing, but the games were well played and were always close. The team often led at the end of the first half but faded in the second half.

At the beginning of the season the prospects looked excellent because of victories over U. City and Kirkwood, but a powerful Webster team beat the Bombers 44-22. Chaminade and Clayton both defeated the team, but the Clayton game was a hotly contested one, and the issue was in doubt until the closing seconds of the game.

The team next journeyed to Herculaneum and beat them 22-21. The game featured Billy Edison's eight points in the closing minutes. During the Christmas holidays, the team participated in the Normandy Tournaments and was defeated in the first game by last year's champions, Bismark. In the consolation game,

"A" Basketball

Burroughs was defeated in a very close game by McBride, who went on to win the consolation tournament.

The Country Day game was a heart-breaking loss as Burroughs was ahead by eight points in the last two minutes. Codasco rallied and tied the game in the last few moments. In an overtime period, Codasco used a man for man defense, baffling and defeating the Burroughs' fine efforts. In the first Western game, Burroughs was again ahead at the half, but Western rallied in the second half and soundly trounced the Bombers. In the first Principia game, Burroughs came from behind to win in the closing minutes of the game. In the second Country Day and Western games, the Bombers were defeated, but the Western game was a very close one. In the final regularly scheduled game of the season, Burroughs defeated Principia by the score of 35-30. The final game of the season was with Maplewood, who defeated us by the score of 41-36. It was a very close game, and the outcome was in doubt until the final minutes when Maplewood forged ahead to win the first game on their march, which was to lead them to the semi-finals of the district tournament.

The season was featured by the great playing of Jerry Rubenstein and "High-point Man," Bill Kieffer. Also usually found in the starting line-up were Schneider, Pfeifler, Werner, Mueller, and Edison. Thompson, Keith and Bob Williams, Arrick, Rosaaen, and Clarahan also saw considerable game experience. Captain Rubenstein and Kieffer received the honor of being placed on several all ABC teams.

"B" Basketball

The "B" Basketball team had a very disappointing season. They won but four out of fifteen games, finishing last in the ABC League. Throughout the season these boys were unable to settle down and play the type of ball that is necessary to turn out a winning team.

The Bulldogs opened their season with a pair of losses at the hands of Chaminade. The following week, an inspired "B" team fell before a powerful Clayton team, 11-10. In this game, the "B" team outscrapped their opponents and held them to one point in the second half. In the next game, the "B" team gained their first victory at the hands of Herculaneum, 12-9. During Christmas week, the Bulldogs split a pair of games with Consul House and defeated Wright.

"B" team plays Western at Alton.

After Christmas, an improved team came back and beat Chaminade, 22-17, but the following week they fell before Clayton, 19-17. The Bulldogs opened their League competition with a 30-12 defeat at the hands of Codasco. The following week, they were thoroughly bounced by Western. The "B" team ended the first half of their League competition with a 39-27 defeat by Principia. In the next game, the Bulldogs lost a second time to Codasco, and the following week, they were defeated at the hands of Western, 28-19. The "B" team ended their season with a 16-15 defeat from an outplayed Principia five.

Throughout the season Bennett, Salisbury, Minton, Alexander, Cornwell, Edison, Wulfing, and Maune saw considerable service, with Grant filling in late in the season.

This year's team was coached by Mr. John Brown.

Third Row: R. Edison, R. Jackman, J. Loy, E. Dresser, B. Coburn. Second Row: S. Grant, I. Buxell, J. Yocum, B. Thies, B. Stupp, D. Sisler, J. Edison, Coach Staten. First Row: B. Utiger, R. Strassner, B. Bishop, A. Heuer, F. Burst, J. Gibbins.

"C" Basketball

The "C" basketball team, behind the excellent coaching and fine guidance of Coach Staten, annexed an undisputed championship of the "C" division in the ABC League. It was their second straight championship, as they also won the "C" division in football.

The starting line-up consisted of five of the following: Theis, Edison, Sisler, Stupp, Yocum, and Buxell.

After losing their first games to Wydown, 20-24, to Chaminade, 11-19, two games to Council House, and a very close one to Webster, 27-28, the season looked like a disheartening one. But the next week the rejuvenated regulars severely trounced the Codasco "C" team in their initial League tilt, 31-17, Edison and Theis leading the Junior Bombers' attack.

The Bombers continued their winning ways, defeating Western, 26-7, Prin, 28-12, and Wydown, 19-12.

The following week, the Statenmen again slaughtered Country Day, 27-16. Theis led the attack with nine points. The cocky, overconfident players then won two very close games from Western and Principia. The Western game went into a three-minute overtime, but the team eventually won by a three-point margin.

Much credit is due Coach Staten, who provided the team with the necessary fundamentals and the spark needed for a winning season and a championship team.

In spite of the discouraging start, the boys improved steadily throughout the season. Among their many assets were excellent shooting, good ball handling, great teamwork, and a marvelous zone defense, which is demonstrated by the fact that they scored 149 points against opponents in League competition.

Stupp, Yocum, and Thies cooperate to score in Country Day game.

"A" Baseball

The prospects for a successful baseball season in 1945 are still fairly good although the pre-season practice games were all defeats. A complete team from last year's championship "A" baseball squad returned, along with several new additions to the team. To date, this year Chaminade defeated the Bombers by the scores of four to one and eight to three; Kirkwood defeated the Bombers two to nothing and four to nothing, and Webster beat the Bombers by a score of seven to four. In the only League game played thus far, the Bombers defeated Country Day by the score of four to two. The game featured masterful and steady pitching on the part of Robin Day, who allowed only three hits, and superb fielding on the field. At bat, the Bombers came through with timely hits to score the needed four runs.

The 1944 "A" baseball team tied with Western for the championship of the A. B. C. League. This was the third consecutive championship "A" baseball team turned out by Burroughs and the twelfth in sixteen seasons.

In the opening League game of the season, which was played with Western Military Academy, the Bombers lost their first and only League game by a score of three to two. Burroughs won their second League game from Country Day on home grounds by a score of three to two, with Robin Day pitching superbly and turning in a one-hit game. Again Day came up with a one-hit performance, this time beating Country Day on their home ground by a score of two to one. By defeating Western four to one in the last League game of the season, the Bombers clinched a tie for the Championship of the A. B. C. League.

Coach Staten made a point of rotating the players, so that everyone played in some of the games and gained valuable experience. A great deal of credit for the successful baseball season goes to Coach Staten.

Track

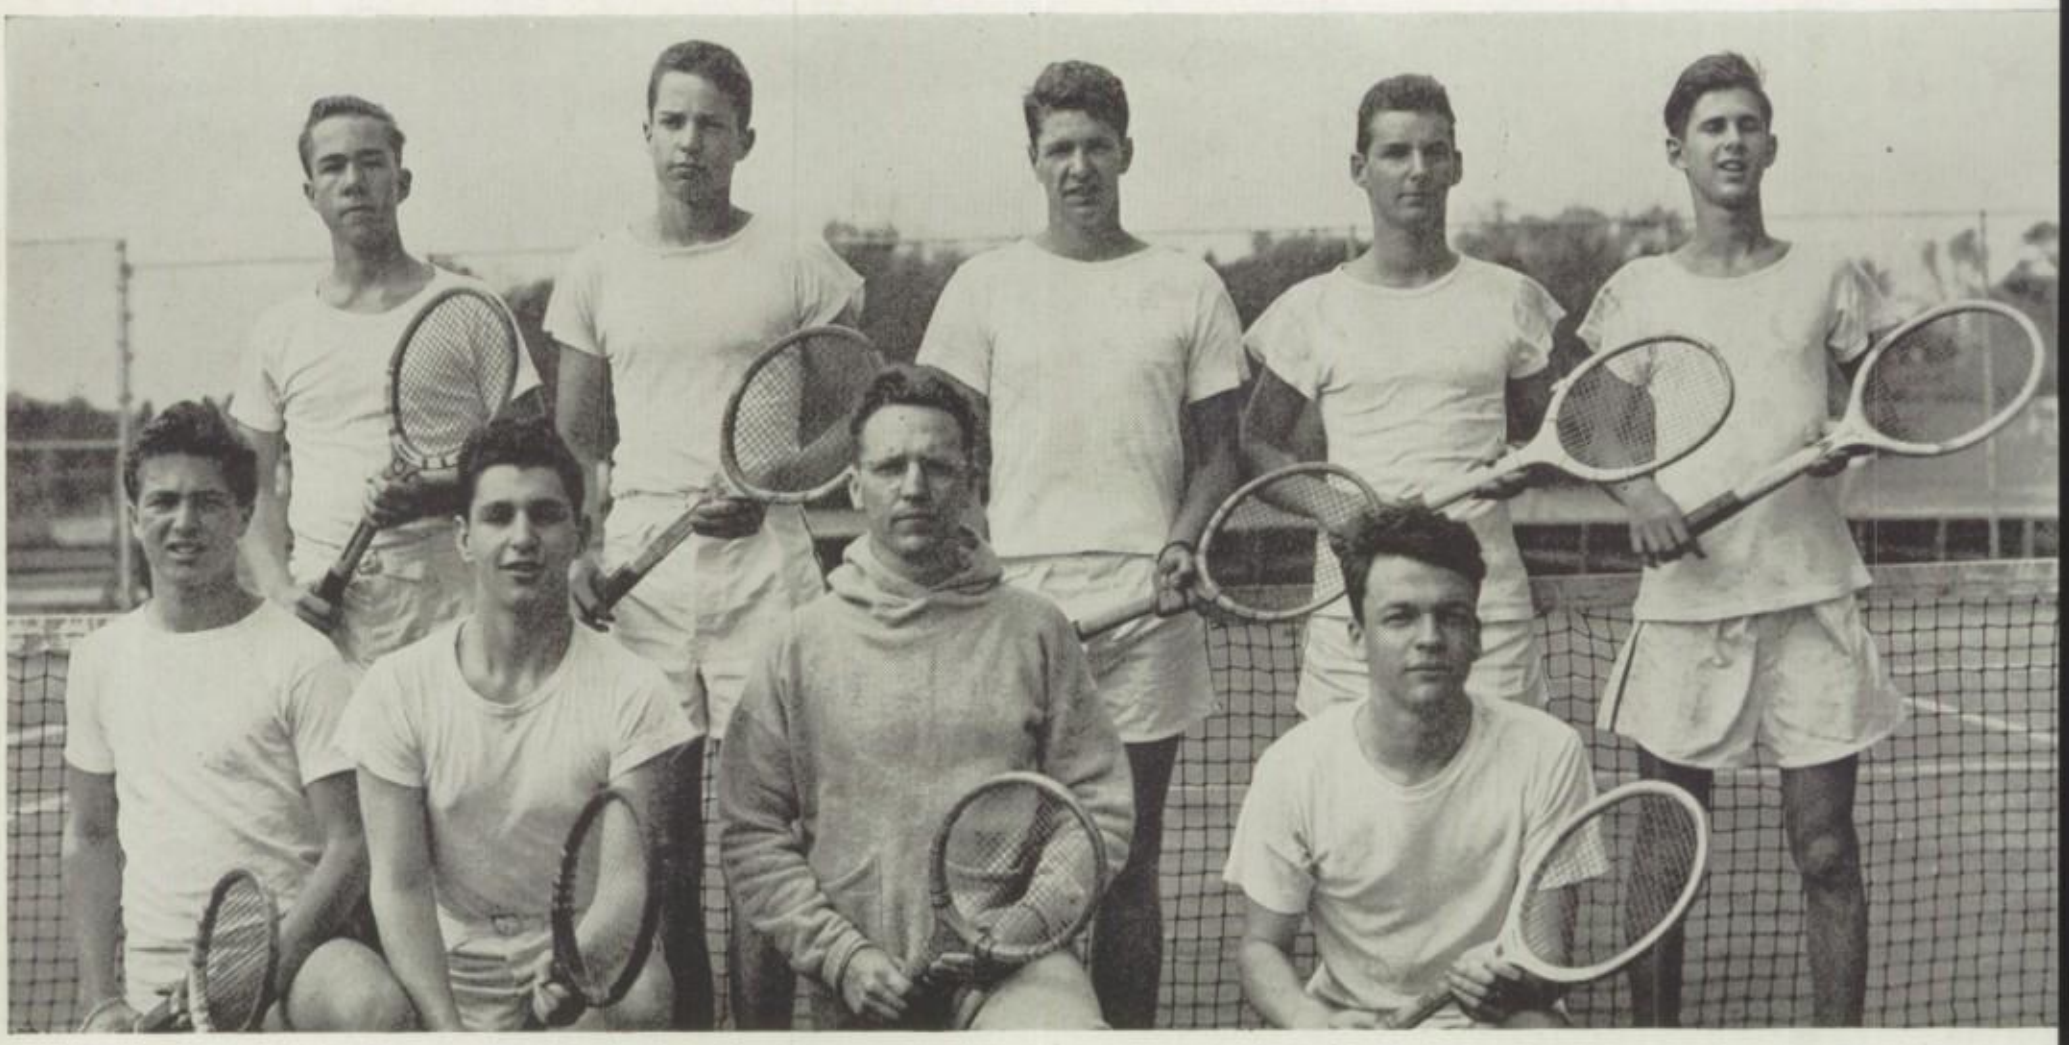
Last year's track team had an average season, winning one meet and losing two. After losing to Western, 49½ to 72½, the Bombers came back to defeat Codasco, 57 to 56. However, the Principia team won over Burroughs, 68½ to 44¾. In the District Track Meet, Burroughs placed third, with Bill Scott winning the mile and half mile, Bill Harrell winning the low hurdles and placing second in the high hurdles, and Ben Tilghman, Jim Jenkins, Bill Schneider, Elliott Chubb, and Bill Kieffer also gaining points for Burroughs.

This year the Track Team has so far participated in only three meets and has yet to gain a victory. The first meet was with Clayton and the Bombers were defeated even though they showed great strength in certain running events. The meet with Codasco was the first League meet of the season. The outcome was in doubt until the final event, the relay, was completed. However, by winning this race, Country Day came from behind to win, 57 to 56. The next meeting was with Western, and here, too, occurred a set-back for the Bombers. Although several members of the squad turned in remarkable performances (Scott's 4:45 in the mile and his time of 2:04 in the half-mile, and Peyton Daniel's 22.6 seconds in the 220-yard dash were especially noteworthy), the squad did not fare so well in the field events. Meets, at this writing, are scheduled with Principia and Blewett, and boys from Burroughs will also participate in the District Meet at Taylor Field, the ABC League Meet, and the State Meet at Columbia, Missouri.

Bill Kieffer and Jerry Rubenstein are outstanding in the hurdles, while Peyton Daniel, Jack Baker, and Duff Allen turn in good performances in the dashes. Bill Scott, Vol Potter, Ed McCulloch, Elliott Chubb, and Bill Costen stand out in the longer races. Kieffer and Bob Williams are good in the high and the broad jump as is Elliott Chubb. Don Wilson is the best pole vaulter, and Al Schneider, Bill Kieffer, Bob Williams, and Marc Seldin show promise in the weight events. All in all, prospects for an increasingly good season are bright.

"A" Tennis



Second Row: P. Crossen, T. Day, L. Stuart, J. Martin, J. Edison. First Row: M. Goldman, B. Edison, Mr. Hirth, B. Murphy.

Last year's "A" Tennis Team, under the direction of Coach Elmer Hirth, won its second successive A. B. C. Championship. The 1944 netsters beat Western, Principia, and Country Day all on the first round. The second time around, they lost a hard fought match to Principia, but again trimmed Western. In the final match to decide the championship, the Bombers overcame Country Day in a thrilling encounter.

The three singles positions were usually filled by Bob Spitzer, Bunny Edison, and Billy Edison, with Bob Williams filling in whenever needed. The outstanding performances turned in by these boys were greatly responsible for the success of the team. The two doubles teams consisted of Spitzer, the two Edisons, and Neville Grant. Williams and Bill Murphy furnished capable reserve power.

This year, the five lettermen returning—Bill Edison, Bunny Edison, Neville Grant, Bob Williams, and Bill Murphy, formed the nucleus of a squad whose prospects seem to be quite good. The addition of two sophomores, John Martin and Julian Edison, has further strengthened the team.

At the time the Yearbook goes to press, the netmen have played three matches, winning all of them. The first match was with Principia on their courts. John Martin easily won his singles match, 6-0, 6-1. Bunny Edison increased the lead of the Blue and Gold by trouncing his opponent, 6-0, 6-0. Bob Williams dropped his encounter in a hard-fought match. In the doubles, Martin and Edison teamed together to take the first doubles match with ease, 6-2, 6-4, to clinch the match. The second doubles, however, was dropped by Murphy and Williams.

The next match was a non-league tilt with U. City, one of the most highly rated teams in the city, in which Coach Hirth's men scored an upset victory. After a match with Western and one with Country Day were postponed, due to the weather, the Bombers again met and defeated Principia, this time taking all three singles.

If the J. B. netmen can get by Country Day, their most formidable opponent, the way would seem clear to their third straight championship. Hard work, however, will be necessary for that victory.

Army-Navy

The contest between the Army and the Navy this year is an extremely close one. To date the Navy is ahead with both little and big Navy holding a slight lead. However, with tennis and track still to be played, the advantage may very easily change hands.

In the first sport of the season, football, big Navy, with Byram Thies as captain, came out ahead. Little Navy, led by Eddie Rowland, also was victorious. Soccer, played only between grades, was won by neither team. Basketball, another winter sport, came out almost a tie, with Navy again holding only a slight margin of victory.

Baseball is the spring sport which has been played so far. The big Army leads, but in the little teams the Navy is ahead. With the teams running very closely, the school track meet will undoubtedly prove the deciding factor.

Third Row: G. Meyer, D. Gottlieb, R. Wagner, A. Sibley, M. Fischlowitz, B. Bishop, W. Burke, J. Bauer. Second Row: R. Strassner, J. Burst, A. Heuer, L. Petring, D. Sisler, S. Pruett, A. Caskey, E. Part Four

Cooperation

A requirement for success in community living, national unity, and world peace is cooperation. In school life it is also of great importance, so it is natural that John Burroughs School should provide every possible occasion to develop this quality. The finest example of this is our system of student government, wherein students work together to direct their actions and ideas toward democratic goals. Our Constitution says, "Such cooperation involves the exercise of rights and privileges on the one hand, and the assumption of duties and responsibilities on the other." The varied school activities, including—dramatics, chorus, the publications, clubs, etc., indicate the opportunities for cooperation in achieving worth-while results which further individual skills.

Student Court

The teeth of the student government of John Burroughs School is represented in the Student Court. Persons violating rules of conduct are reported and brought before the five members for public trial. Defendants are innocent till found guilty, but most of them fall for not knowing exactly what makes them guilty and for basing their case on unstable grounds. This year's Court is to be commended for its creditable work.

Student Council

The Student Council is the executive department of our Student Government. It recommends and sponsors legislation, prepares rules of student conduct, supervises projects, such as the Red Cross and War Chest drives, and organizes various assemblies. The Council is composed of nine members, six of whom are elected from the senior school, and three from the junior school. The Speaker and Secretary of the Assembly are ex-officio members.

The Yearbook

The Yearbook, contains written and photographic records of the activities of the school year with special attention given to the graduating class. In addition to publishing an invaluable record of each year's happenings, work on the Yearbook gives the students experience in written composition, and in planning, writing, typing, proofing, and illustrating the school annual.

The planning of the school advertizing campaigns and the quest for money through advertising to produce an improved 1945 Yearbook fell largely to our extremely capable Business Manager and her department.

Meetings of the entire board are held at school, yet little of the work can be done during the short school periods. The bulk of the work is done outside of school by a few students and the faculty advisor.

"World" board speeds to make the deadline.

The John Burroughs World was organized in 1927 as a result of a student demand for a school newspaper. IT is an outgrowth of the "Lest We Forget" section of the Review and its primary purpose is to keep the pupils posted on school activities. The first sponsor, as well as the present sponsor, was Dr. Mark A. Neville, who has served in this capacity ten years. Mr. Ben Wells was the faculty advisor for a time as was also Mr. Phil Collins.

The World

The World is the student newspaper of John Burroughs School. Published every two weeks during the school year, it is written by a staff of students with the advice of the faculty advisor, Dr. Mark A. Neville.

In charge of the World this year was Bunny Edison, one of the most capable editors-in-chief in recent years. An efficiently organized sports department was directed by Dick Burke, and the staff contributed many interesting and informative articles upon pertinent subjects, relating both to school life and life as members of a larger community.

Some of the regular features of the World, in addition to sports, include up-to-date information about the alumni, especially those in the Armed Forces, stories about school activities, and interesting critical editorials on controversial subjects of importance.

The World this year has completely fulfilled both of its purposes: to give students experience in writing journalistic prose and directing a periodical, and to keep the entire student body in touch with the many activities of the school. Being a member of this publication is one of the most important and valuable educational experiences at John Burroughs.

John Burroughs Review

The board of the Review, the literary magazine of John Burroughs, attempts to select and publish the outstanding accomplishments in creative writing done by the students of the school. This year there have been two excellent issues of the Review, one in late December, the other in May. In addition to the literary content, these editions have been decorated with block prints by various members of the art department. Most of the prints reproduced in the Review this year were done by Alex MacNutt.

With an unusually large board, it was found necessary to elect three members to the editorial staff. The board was divided into two groups, each meeting separately, and each with its Editor-in-Chief. These two, Joanne Fistere and Jerry Rubenstein, and the business manager, Marilyn Peterson, made up this year's editorial staff with Miss Evelyn Damon as faculty advisor.

The selections submitted to this board include various types of essays, short stories, and poetry. The board carefully scrutinizes all of the material submitted to it, and accepts, rejects, or suggests corrections, so that a collection of well-written compositions is the final product.

The John Burroughs School Review was begun in 1924 by Howard F. Seeley. For four years, it was the only student publication, including "Lest We Forget," the news section, and "The Attic"—humorous and serious student writing. The Review was put out five times a year, the final issue including pictures of student life and the senior class. In 1928, the World took over the news section and in 1934, the Yearbook took over the expanded final issue of the Review.

The Review board considers a submitted composition.

Senior Orchestra

The orchestra, consisting of ten members, accompanied the annual Christmas Pageant again this year and took part in a musical assembly. The highlight of the season, however, was the Spring Concert. For two years the operetta has supplanted the Spring Concert, but this year the Spring Concert was reestablished, and the orchestra made a very valuable contribution to its success. The majority of the senior school orchestra are juniors and seniors.

The addition of some of the present members of the junior school orchestra will be welcome to the senior orchestra. Next year's group is expected to be one of Burroughs' largest and best.

Senior Glee Club

The sixty-one members of the Senior Glee Club, including an unusually fine boys' section, under the direction of Mr. Ralph Weinrich have had a very good season. Their performance in the traditional Christmas Pageant was exceptional. During the Christmas season the Glee Clubs broadcast twice for the benefit of the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association, once on KMOX and once on a coast to coast network on Mutual. They also presented several enjoyable music assemblies to the school at large. In place of an operetta, this year the Glee Club took part in the outstanding Spring Concert which climaxed a successful musical season.

Junior Orchestra

From the Junior School Orchestra must come the new material for the Senior Orchestra; therefore, we watch its progress anxiously and keep looking for competent Senior School players. The Junior Orchestra was combined with the Senior Orchestra in the Spring Concert. Here they received a great deal of experience by playing with more advanced students. There seems to be quite an enthusiasm for music in the Junior School, for its orchestra is even larger than that of the Senior School. This year there are members from each of the three grades, but the eighth grade predominates. The orchestra consists of three violins, one cello, two clarinets, one flute, two horns and a trumpet.

Junior Chorus

The Junior Chorus is composed of about sixty boys and girls from the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades, and is directed by Mr. Weinrich. Members of the Junior Chorus are selected on the basis of their ability to sing.

This group had its usual unforgettable part in the Christmas Pageant and the Spring Concert. They worked with the Senior Chorus, and together, these two groups presented Christmas carol broadcasts on radio stations KMOX and KSD. The latter program was a nation-wide broadcast. Later in the year, the Junior Chorus added greatly to the success of a music assembly. This year their work has been outstanding.

Shooting the bull.

The Rifle Club of the John Burroughs School has been under the guidance of Mr. Montgomery and Mrs. Wilson. There are thirty-six students participating and they have one period a week to win the step by step awards given by the National Rifle Association. Mrs. Wilson has given her time on two days a week to supervise the girls' shooting.

Rifle Club

Jack Grant has been president of the club this year and has had the honor of awarding Mary Bry, Elise Habenicht, Robin Day, Pete Stupp, and Bill Costen the Expert Rifleman's Award. This award is hard to obtain and it calls for accurate, consecutive shooting.

During the last two years the Rifle Club has been striving for better equipment. Last year we were able to get a large fan which has helped considerably. Mr. Montgomery has just ordered five spotting scopes, one for each point. These scopes will enable each shooter to watch his own target and will make the range more efficient. In addition, we hope to secure from the War Department one or two Winchester 75's which will round out our supply of rifles.

The Burroughs Rifle Team is a member of The Greater St. Louis Rifle League. This year it has participated in six matches with Cleveland, Webster, and Country Day. The team is composed of Robin Day, Jack Grant, Pete Stupp, Bill Murphy, Bill Costen, and Alec Cornwell. Their average for the season is 665,

The team has had a very good year, and all the participators have shown an enthusiastic interest in marksmanship.

Third Row: J. Edison, J. Arrick, D. Wilson, R. Burke, K. Williams, D. Allen, B. Edison, G. Miltenberger. Second Row: Mr. Obourn, R. Bennet, W. Alexander, W. Scott, G. Fiske, G. Rendleman, J. Stamm, G. Hagee. First Row: W. Costen, R. Day, R. Gartside, J. Studt.

Junior Academy

The Junior Academy of Science is an activity in which a student interested in science may go beyond the general course by studying the particular phases that interest him. The chapter, named after Irving Langmuir, is under the direction of Mr. Obourn and Mr. Montgomery. Formerly, admittance was by invitation only, but because many would thus be wrongly excluded and a greater variety of interest encouraged, membership was opened for all in the upper three grades.

Students are allowed great freedom in their study in that they may work on their project whenever their schedule permits, there being a meeting of the entire group every Wednesday.

This activity is a very informal one, members working at their own speed, performing experiments on their subjects which are exhibited at the end of the year, usually along with a written report.

This year sophomores, Julian Edison and Ed McCulloch are working on weather forecasting. Two juniors, Bob Gartside and Gordon Miltenberger, are doing a two-year study of crystallography. Bill Costen and Neville Grant are working on qualitative analysis, while Bill Scott and Bob Alexander are studying and experimenting with the processes of making paper. Janey Studt is testing plant growth and the effect of various substances controlling it. In the senior group, Alec Cornwell is carrying on the weather station started several years ago by Hal Wuertenbaecher; Duff Allen has been studying the manufacture of aluminum; and Rowland Dodson chose the interesting subject of the color spectra of elements.

Sculpture

The equipment with which to work in the sculpture department is excellent. Many tools are available along with an anatomical figure that helps the students in modeling life-like figures. Also a very small kiln for the purpose of firing things has been added to the department this year.

Every year a national art exhibit is held for the purpose of giving students from all schools a chance to show their best work. John Burroughs has always been very active in these exhibits and, as a result, has won prizes every year.

The Sculpture Department of John Burroughs School, which is directed by Caroline Risque Janis and her assistant, Aline Janis, offers great opportunities to anyone who is interested in this field. It is an outlet for creative energy and it develops an understanding of design, anatomy, and three dimensional forms.

This training of the hand and eye is valuable not only for the student intending to enter the field of sculpture, but to those who are considering surgery, medicine, architecture, landscape engineering, or commercial design. Beside the more practical aspects mentioned, the student learns to see what he looks at, and this will heighten his enjoyment and appreciation of the beauty and character in the world around him.

Pupils are encouraged to form their own ideas and to carry them out as independently as possible. After a piece of work has been finished, it is sent to be fired and glazed, or, if the student prefers, he may cast his work in plaster or concrete. Some of the students made piece molds of small figures and used the casts as Christmas gifts.

Future Geniuses.

Mandy Explains.

Painting

In the Painting Department, creative ability is discovered and developed. The students work in an informal atmosphere, the particular skills being learned by each pupil through individual instruction. Water color, oils, pastels, charcoal, pencil, and linoleum blocks are all used by the pupils. The studios are housed in two rooms of the new wing.

The painting department is not only an important activity for the development of its participants, but it augments other phases of school life. Art students are responsible for the scenery of the dramatic productions. They are also the ones who do the scenery designs for the Junior Prom and the Senior Girls' Leap Year Dance. The block prints in the "Review" are another accomplishment of the painting department.

The war has had an effect on the paintings of the boys. Pictures of struggle, planes, and ships are seen in any visit to the painting room. This influence had affected the older boys, as well as the younger ones. The battles, however, have not influenced the work of the girls, for none of their paintings have a military tone. Mrs. Mabel Meeker Edsall and Dorothy Gartside Reismeyer are the instructors of those who turn out so much fine work. The many honors given, in national exhibitions, to the art work of John Burroughs are a tribute to Mrs. Edsall and Mrs. Reismeyer, as well as to their pupils.

This year special attention has been given to design and color theories. Many of the people taking painting have made color sheets and then have used the color combinations in their pictures. During the second half of the year much of the work has been about good design. There have been many still lifes set up in the art room, and these were drawn so that the paper was well covered even if the objects had to be distorted. A number of abstracts were done in three colors using the driveway up to the school, fence posts, trees, and rocks as the subjects for the pictures. This has been very valuable training for those interested in art.

Home Economics

The work of the second semester dealt with clothing. The girls chose one article of clothing to make well and to finish during this study. They learned how to select a good pattern and the material to go with it. The objective of this unit was to develop an interest in being becomingly and suitably dressed.

Soup's On.

This year Miss Rehder divided the home economics department into two fields of study: Foods and Clothing. Each field was in turn broken up into different units. The foods study included food preservation, nutrition, marketing, budgeting, and menu planning, as well as the preparation and serving of food. The clothing unit included the study of patterns and materials and actual construction. A special full credit course was offered to the girls in the senior class which included a semester of study in each field. Many girls from the senior school took sewing as an activity under Miss Rehder's direction.

The seventh and eighth grade classes spent one unit planning a party. The class was divided into committees which shared the work, as well as the fun.

The nutrition course was very extensive and included the study of vitamins, minerals, the planning of an adequate diet, and the ever important subject of calories. The food values of each food were discussed before its preparation. The objective was to give the girls a basis for future study and to help them gain an elementary understanding of the unit.

In the foods unit, vegetables and fruits were canned and the students made jelly and tomato juice. All of these foods were used later in the preparation and serving of other dishes. A knowledge of the principles of cookery was the aim of the study of foods.

Industrial Arts

The shop has been one of the busiest places in school this year. Because of its fine equipment and pleasant conditions, it is a popular spot for the boys.

This department stresses five attitudes that are important in life, and that can be partially learned in handling machines, tools, and materials, and by working with the other students. These attitudes are industry, cooperation, self-reliance, consideration for others, and readiness to assume responsibility.

Under the supervision of Mr. Frank Schmitt the boys learn to use the machines correctly. The wood and metal lathes have been especially popular. Sets for the Christmas Pageant and for the school plays have been constructed. In addition, many boys make Christmas presents and items for the home in the shop. Because of the war, the boys have recently become intereested in oxyacetylene welding.

The industrial drawing department provides a chance for boys to study and do mechanical, architectual, and engineering drawing. Mr. John Brown is handling all the drawing at present. Mr. Brown is assisting in the shop department while awaiting a call from the Merchant Marines. This course provides an excellent foundation upon which the boys may base their more advanced learning.

The seventh graders, after receiving a half year of drawing, are permitted to work in the shop. They are instructed then in the use of different wood working tools. Much the same plan is followed in the eighth grade, except that a more advanced course is given. After the student finishes the eighth grade, he may choose the course that is most to his liking. Since they are allowed to follow their own interests, the boys find the shop very enjoyable and instructive.

Gruesome Twosome.

Piano

The Piano Department has grown a great deal in the past few years. Many of the numbers on our musical assembly programs could not have been played so artistically if it had not been for the enthusiastic cooperation of this department.

About once a month a piano program is given in the music room. Anyone who has something ready to play may participate and the student body is invited to listen. This is of great benefit to performers and listeners as well. The programs usually last about forty minutes, and even though they are held after school hours, the audiences have been fairly large and interested, which is a distinct compliment to this department.

Material for spring concerts and for mothers' and daughters' luncheons has been furnished by the piano department. It has been responsible, also, for several duo piano teams of which there are now two.

The six practice rooms are open to anyone who is really interested in music, and who will use the pianos to best advantage. One of the rooms has two pianos for duo teams to use. Students and faculty members who have an occasional free period often find relaxation from the academic routine of the day in the music department.

Ralph Weinrich and June Weybright do an excellent job of running this department smoothly.

Typing

A very good course is offered at John Burroughs School for those students who wish to learn typing. This is valuable training since many college professors do not accept work unless it is typed. Four periods a week are required for one-half credit. This course is for "personalized" typing only. In addition to work in the text-book, the student is given speed exercises, practice in typing business letters, and practice in typing articles for some of the school publications. By the end of the year, the student has a fair rate of speed.

Athletic Council

The members of the Athletic Council are representatives of the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grade advisories. In September of each year these eight advisories elect four girls and four boys into the Athletic Council membership. It is the duty of these representatives to meet with Miss Beaman and Mr. Bennett, advisors to the Council, and to keep the members of their respective advisories informed of the proceedings of the Council and the calendar of future important athletic events.

Madeline Haertter and Jeff Arrick, representatives from the two senior advisories, were elected co-chairmen at the first meeting this fall. Madeline has presided over the Council meetings, and Jeff will preside at the Athletic Banquet this spring. Jo Ann James, the eleventh grade representative from the girls' advisory, has served as the Secretary of the Council. Bob Mueller is the representative from the eleventh grade boys' advisory. Janet Meyer and Marjory Mueller are this year's representatives from the tenth and ninth grade girls' advisories. Charles Salisbury and Ray Bolin are the respective representatives of the tenth and ninth grade boys' advisories. Two members, Jeff Arrick and Charles Salisbury, have served the Council before. Jeff is completing his third year and Charles, his second.

During March two assemblies were sponsored by the Council for the presentation of the boys' football, basketball, and soccer awards.

Time off.

An important function of the Council is concerned with the planning and supervision of the Athletic Banquet. The sportsmanship awards, the team awards, and the all-around best player awards are made at this time.

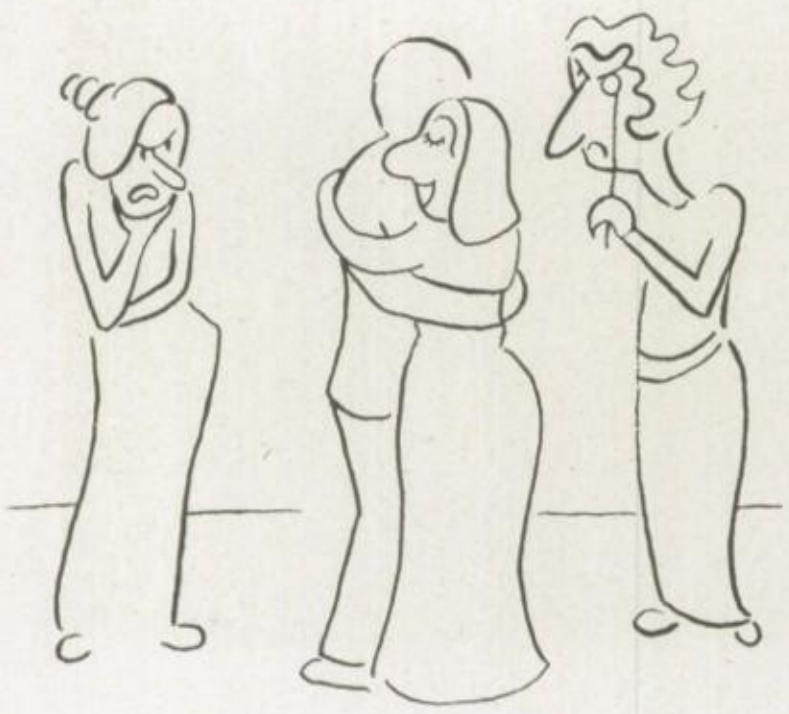
Part Five

Entertainment

John Burroughs offers v a r i e d entertainments which constitute an essential and interesting section of our student life. Our annual Christmas Celebration is considered one of the finest presented anywhere in this area. Plays, operettas, and spring concerts are looked forward to most enthusiastically by all who are familiar with their charm. These presentations are a part of our activity program. The Senior Leap Year Dance and the Junior Prom are always great successes—preceded by much hard work and artistic endeavor. These various forms of entertainment allow our talented members to show their abilities to advantage—giving them valuable practice and affording those who listen much pleasure.



Senior Girls' Leap Year Dance

Hostesses and Hostages.

Time Out.

Something new ? has been added.

Friday, the thirteenth of April, was the date the Senior girls chose for their annual Leap Year Dance. Since Friday, the thirteenth, is traditionally unlucky, they decided the theme should be centered around various superstitions. The decoration committee's chairman, Joan Spencer, was in charge of decorating, and soon black cats, five leaf clovers, the number 13, and men slipping on banana skins were silhouetted around the walls of the large gymnasium. An enormous, grotesque black spider dangled over the orchestra, casting an eerie shadow from its web. An open umbrella hung from the center of the ceiling where all of the streamers were gathered. The streamers were crepe paper on two sides and a mixture of crepe paper and strips of light green cloth on the other two sides. The only thing missing was a ladder which had been considered, but because of certain objections about walking under it at the door, the idea was abandoned. Even the tickets played up the theme, for Friday the Thirteenth was printed in darker and bolder print.

The music was provided by Wayne Tucker and his orchestra, and we are agreed that the orchestra committee, headed by Kitty White, chose wisely. The music makers contributed their share to the bad luck theme. There were thirteen dances instead of the usual number. After the twelfth, the lights were dimmed; the cymbals clashed thirteen times; and the thirteenth dance was ushered in.

There were tables and chairs in the small gymnasium, where cokes and cookies were served. Ruth Sunnen, the chairman, and the rest of the refreshment committee had seen to it that there was plenty to eat, and not only that, it was delicious.

A great deal of credit goes to the general chairman of the dance, Sally Douglas, and to the other chairmen; Marilyn Peterson, finance; Gloria Gardner, arrangements; and Judy Williamson, tickets. Credit should also be given to the faculty for helping to make the evening a success even in spite of all the bad luck signs.

Junior Promenade

The annual John Burroughs School Promenade was held Friday evening, May the fourth.

The theme this year was "A Street Cafe." Carrying out this idea, the small gym was decorated as the interior of the cafe—with the usual small tables covered with red-checkered table cloths—and the large gym was decorated as the square outside the cafe. Around the "sidewalk," there were tables and chairs, as in a typical French cafe, and the sidewalk was bordered by a green hedge, protected by a picket-fence. The walls of the gym looked like the walls of buildings, from which several bay windows were built out. These windows were filled as display windows, with colored glass and perfume bottles, etc. Again, this year, the bandstand was against the west wall which affords more space and gives a better effect. The band was on a raised platform, covered with a striped awning.

Al Judd's orchestra supplied ideal music for the Prom.

Although the refreshment committee had some difficulty obtaining food, they succeeded in getting cokes and cookies for everyone.

The mothers supervised a most successful Open-House for the Junior Class, which was held at Bill Costen's home after the Prom. This was a solution to the problem caused by the war-time restriction which closed the dance at eleven-thirty.

Although this year's Junior Class encountered many difficulties, due to war-time restrictions and shortages, through cooperation and work, they produced one of the most successful proms in the history of the school.

Looking chipper after the best Prom in history.

Christmas Pageant

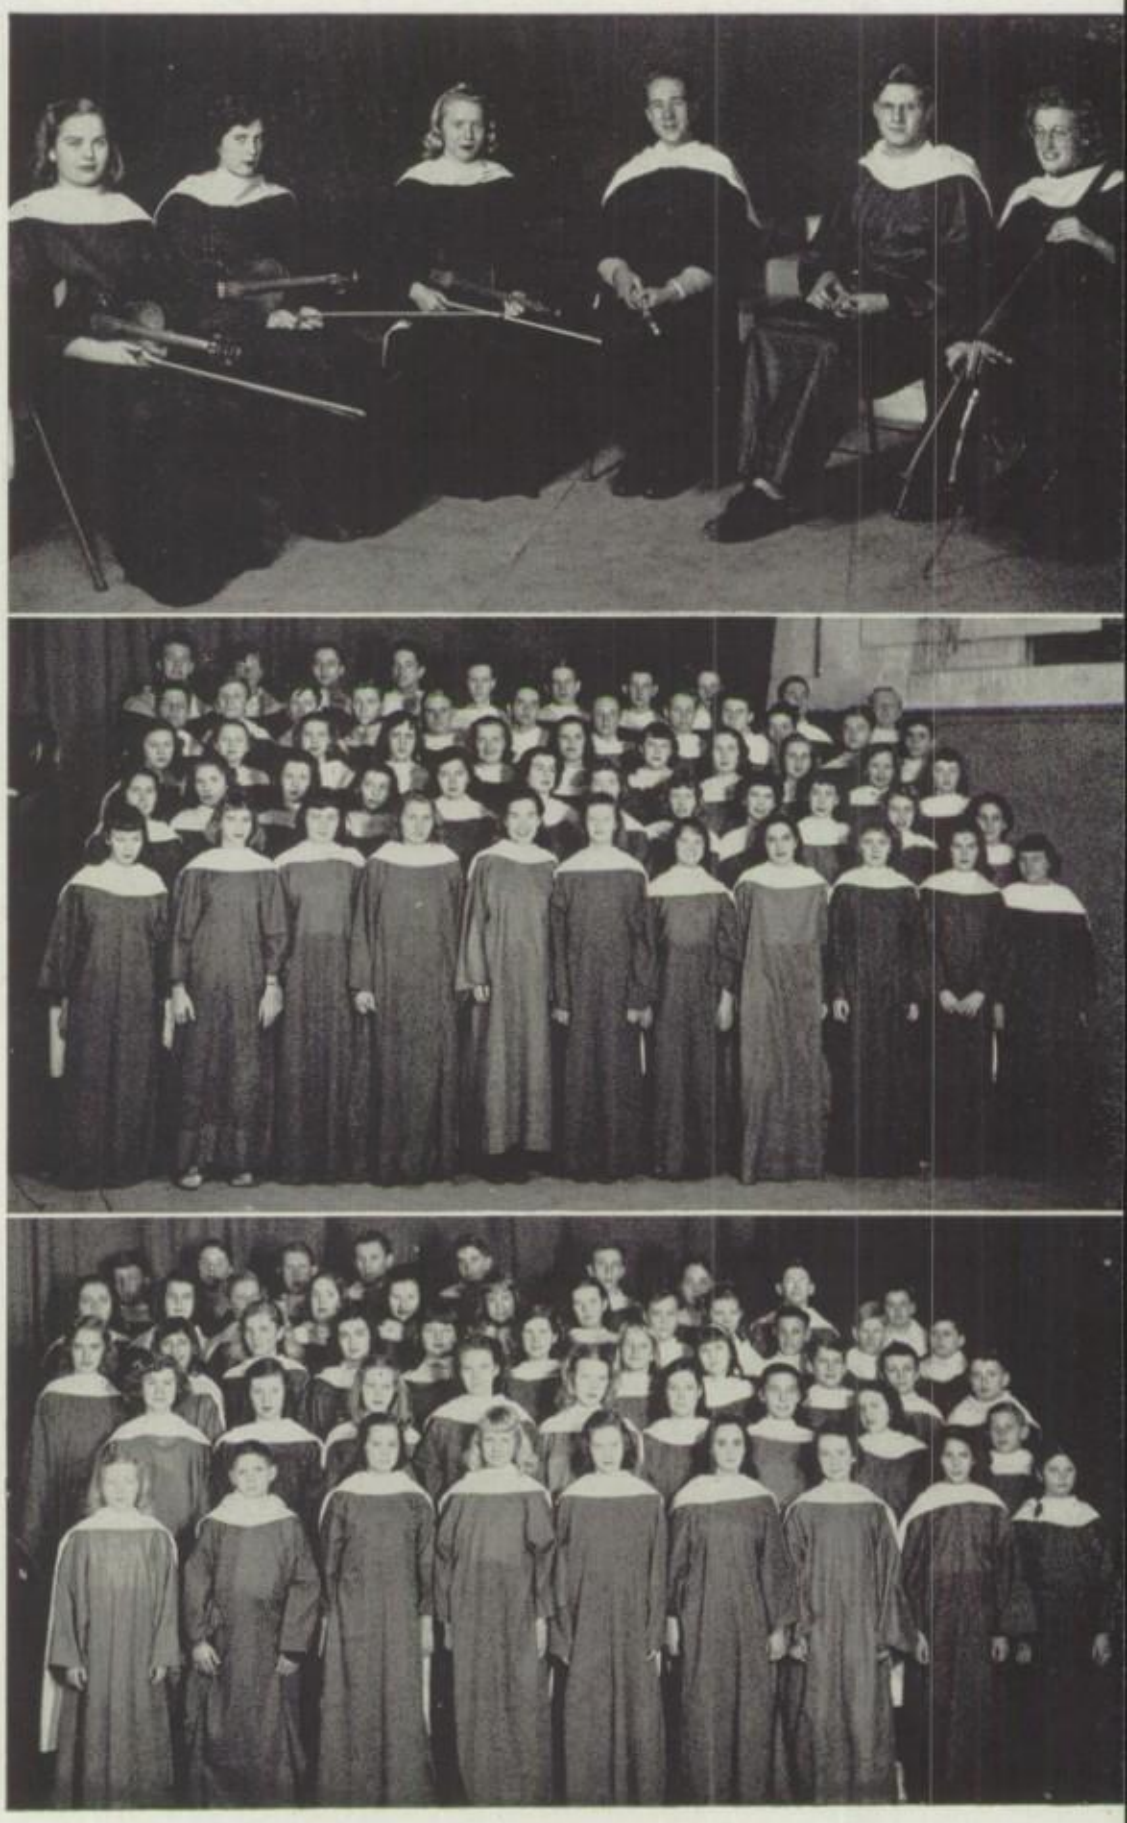
"—and on earth peace—"

The twenty-first Christmas Celebration was presented in the large gymnasium on the afternoon of December twentieth by the student body and faculty of the John Burroughs School. The traditional celebration was dedicated this year to the alumni in the Armed Forces. The parents and students joined in presenting an impressive pageant which is perhaps the most beautiful of the school's many traditions.

Both the large and small gymnasiums were beautifully decorated in a religious motif. Figures of the patron saints of various United Nations adorned the west windows of the large gymnasium. The colorful costumes of the chorus, the narrators, and the book boys and girls were in the tradition of the Christmas spirit.

The climax of the celebration came with the revealing of the tableau. When the story of the birth of Christ had been narrated and the traditional songs and carols had been sung, an original tableau designed by Iris Hofmeister was unveiled. Mary and Joseph were portrayed by Anne Whittemore and Keith Williams.

The tableau this year was an adaptation of a Dutch Renaissance painting. Deep, rich colors and a gold border intricately carved with flowers and birds characterized the tableau. Mary and Joseph were in the traditional colors, blue for Mary and red for Joseph. The tableau was constructed in three depths: the border, the pillars, and the picturesque background. The design, reminiscent of the painter



"Glory to God in the highest."

Christmas Pageant

Memling, was chosen from a large number of submitted designs.

The story of the birth of Christ was told by the narrators, Madeline Haertter and Alec Cornwell. The better-known Christmas songs were sung by the audience and the students. For the benefit of those unfamiliar with the words of some of these songs, large song books were held by the book boys and girls: Virginia McCutcheon, Susan Perkins, Mary Ann Millstone, Franklin Carrol, Edward Roland, Robert Rosenfeld, and Joseph Bauer.

Both the Junior Chorus and the Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Ralph Weinrich, gave fine renditions of several songs. Marilyn Miller sang "Mary's Lullaby" while the curtains were drawn back revealing the tableau. The orchestra also played an important part. Those in the orchestra were as follows: Janey Studt, Harriet Rodes, violin; Philip Crossen, flute; Elizabeth Anne Gray, viola; Elliott Chubb, obe; Marie Anne Brown, cello; Miss June Weybright, piano.

F. Schleicher, B. Alexander, K. Williams (Joseph), A. Whittemore (Mary), B. Sincoff, L. Stuart, N. Mastin.

Mrs. Chester Williamson, general chairman of the celebration, deserves special recognition. Credit also should be given to the painting, dramatcis, home economics, and industrial arts departments.

Second Row: J. Bauer, M. Millstone, E. Roland. First Row: D. Carroll, S. Perkins, V. McCutcheon, R. Rosenfeld.

First reading of "Jane Eyre" in dramatics room.

Dramatics Club

The Dramatics Club has had a very successful year. Under the able direction of Mrs. Gillan two plays have been presented and another is in the offing. "Incognito," by Richard Nusbaum, was presented on the night of December first; "Jane Eyre," by Helen Jerome, was given on March twenty-third, followed by a dance.

"Incognito" combined mystery, intrigue, humor, and romance. It was well suited for high school talents and was greatly enjoyed and appreciated. The guns and Nazis added to the attraction, creating a martial atmosphere.

The leads were well portrayed by Barbara Ayres, Elliott Chubb, and Lynn Stuart. Much credit should also be given to Ruth Sunnen, Harriet Rodes, Judy Williamson, Ginny Staten, Valerie Taylor, Alexandra McNutt, Madeline Haertter, and Pat Black for their fine work. Billy Edison as Von Stumn was excellent and the other impersonations of German sailors were well done.

Because there were so many juniors and seniors interested in dramatics this year, "Incognito" carried a double cast. Although the understudies were not able to give a real production, they received valuable experience in learning the parts.

"Jane Eyre" was one of the best plays ever presented at John Burroughs. Alice Neville and Bob Williams played the leading parts of Jane and Rochester in magnificent style. The others who contributed their talents to the production were Joan Johns, Lela Hill, Nina Gamble, Nora Mastin, Alicia Kircher, Jack Grant, Nancy Kotsrean, Charlotte Eaton, Gordon Miltenberger, Bill Costen, Alec Cornwell, and Lou Werner.

Credit should also be given to the prop girls, especially in "Jane Eyre," and to the stage crew directed by Hank Belz, as well as others who worked behind the scene.

Following the play a dance was sponsored by the Dramatics Club. Bud Murphy and his band provided the music.

In the sophomore class this year two plays were presented, "The Strangest Feeling" by John Kirkpatrick and "Ringing in the Groom" by A. A. O'Keefe. The performances were given April sixth under the direction of Mrs. Gillan. The first concerns the humorous Pickens family. Joy Glik, Jim Kearney, Charles Wulfing, Mary Roddewig, Sue Ittner, and Ed McCulloch contributed their talent towards its success. The latter deals with Grandmother Harrison and her amusingly erratic family. The cast consists of Fleur Barngrove, Helen Conant, Elizabeth Stroud, Bob Maune, and Happy Salisbury.

The third play, "She Stoops to Conquer," will be presented in the amphitheater in late May.

Standing: J. Williamson, H. Rodes, V. Staten, M. Weber, E. Chubb, M. Meyers, R. Bauer, W. Edison, P. Crossen, L. Stuart, W. Kieffer, M. Deichmiller, B. Ayres, M. Haertter, V. Taylor, P. Black, R. Sunnen. Seated: A. MacNutt.

Special Tables

(Circle) French Table: B. Sincoff, J. Glik, J. Studt, A. Whittemore, G. Gardner, A. Elder, Miss Gilbert, J. Williamson, B. Gartside, G. Miltenberger, A. MacNutt, E. Habenicht, I. Hofmeister.

Senior Girls' Table: A. Neville, L. Hill, J. Fistere, V. Taylor, S. Douglas, Mrs. Williamson, B. Ayers, A. Taylor, C. Eaton, R. Sunnen, F. Clarkson, M. Deichmiller.

Senior Boys' Table: J. Baker, W. Edison, D. Burke, E. Chubb, Mr. Haertter, J. Arrick, D. Allen, W. Alexander, R. Bauer, A. Cornwell, R. Day.

This year, something new was added to the dining room! We now have a French table. Miss Moore and Miss Gilbert alternate as the table's faculty members. Since we can speak only French at this table, we gain valuable experience in conversational French. Any French student who wants to may sit at the table. Shortly after Christmas, Miss Gilbert began a Spanish table which also achieved immediate popularity.

There are two other special tables at lunch—the traditional "Senior" tables, one for the boys and the other for the girls. Both of these are in demand, for every day at the beginning of the lunch period, Miss Rehder is surrounded by seniors asking if there are any vacancies at either table. Each table has its own particular appeal. The boys are forever bragging about the amount of extra food they get, whether it's rolls, potatoes, meat, gravy, butter, applesauce, or desserts. The girls seem to prefer two saltcellars and a comparative seclusion. When, toward the end of the year, Mr. Haertter and Mrs. Williamson found themselves confronted by mixed groups, they were quite startled. Since things forever afterward remained normal, however, they judged that the boys prefer more food and less talk, and the girls are content with solitude and two salts.

of the future, extracting a few boogie beats from the new (!) baby grand (?) piano. The climax of the evening was, however, the long-awaited and much-advertised "Unveiling." Many were the dainty female feet that quaked in their even daintier shoes, trembling expectantly as the celebration proceeded. We felt up to the occasion only because we were arrayed in our finest blue-jeans (Levi's, at that!). When the fatal moment arrived, as most fatal moments do, and as the tattle-tale grey sheet slipped—well, just slipped!—we saw—but wait! The latest communique tells us that She prefers to remain anonymous to all but Her Senior boys! (Don't worry girls, you still have Van Johnson!)

We had scarcely revived when we were suddenly aware that the Christmas Pageant was again in full swing. After hectic last-minute rehearsals and varied conjectures as to the identity of Mary and Joseph, we donned our red robes for the last time and were again a part of the pageant. Our impressive narrators were Madeline and Alec, and, as Marilyn Miller sang the traditional Lullaby, the tableau was revealed. Ann Whittemore was Mary, Keith Williams was Joseph, and Bill Alexander, Lynn Stuart, Nora Mastin, and Barbara Sincoff were the other figures in the scene. As we sang "Joy to the World" and walked out of the gym, we knew we were leaving behing us a very vital part of Burroughs.

Again our dramatic talent came to the fore, and we gave a play called "Incognito." Barbara Ayres and Lynn Stuart were the stars, and Ruth Sunnen did a masterful job with the German accent. We are now preparing "Jane Eyre," in which Alice Neville and Bob Williams have the leads.

When we came back from our wild vacations, we had lost two members of the class, and a third was to leave soon. Mary Phelan and Art, our Speaker, caused great consternation when they left. We had another election for Speaker, and Dick Burke was chosen for the job. Mary's letters are second only to Van Johnson in the Girls' Advisory. A few weeks later Roland Bauer left us for college. We hope to see him soon, though, for we hear he can get home on the week ends. Marilyn Peterson's famous hen party supplied us all with the question of the year: WHO IS SMITH?

Somehow we lived through exams and now find ourselves faced with the Leap Year. With Sally to guide us and Stinky Spencer to wield a mighty paint can, we hope we'll pull through. Lus, our able Editor of the Yearbook, and Sinnie, the Business Manager, have done a wonderful job. Bunny Edison's leadership of the World has also been something to marvel at. Quite frankly, we're proud of them all.

As we approach the end of our last year here at Burroughs, we see through the fun and parties and confusion something deeper, which to us is Burroughs itself. We cannot help but realize what we owe our patient teachers, advisors, and Director for their help and cooperation. We have gained valuable experience in varied fields. In the eleventh grade we sang with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and this year we have sung over the radio several times. These are typical of the fine things our school has to offer, and we only hope that we shall be worthy of Burroughs in the future.

THE END.

The second Varsity Hockey game was played with Principia on their field, November 16, 1944.

Principia was the first to score with the ball coming down our left side of the field. That was the only score for either side.

The Burroughs forwards had the ball many times but were not able to score. This was also true of Principia after the first goal. The Principia backs played a strong attacking game, following their forwards right up to the twenty-five yard line. The game ended 1-0 in favor of Principia.

"IT'S BEEN IN OUR FAMILY FOR YEARS"

One of the best indications of the Globe-Democrat's large and constant readership is in the comments you hear so often among the quarter of a million families who depend so fully on this one great newspaper. "The Globe-Democrat is a part of our daily life. It's been in our family for years." This comment, recently made by one of our readers, is typical.

We believe the advertising strength of the Globe-Democrat comes, in great degree, from these strong family ties. We believe the Globe-Democrat's continued growth and prestige comes from an editorial policy gauged to the minds of sound-thinking people, from features that are entertaining and helpful, from comics selected for wholesome, delightful enjoyment, and from world-wide and local news edited for dependable, informative reading.

This has built a reader audience concentrated in the middle-class-and-above, which heightens the advertising value of the Globe-Democrat for those who want to reach this largest and best market.

Advertisers who have a message for this steady-spending middle-class-and-above find the Globe-Democrat most effective for promoting profitable business.
